A SOMBER LOOKING Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel addresses reporters shortly after conviction as his wife Jeanne looks on.

Gov. Mandel convicted

by PETER VANDEVANTER

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Gov. Marvin Mandel, who succeeded Spiro T. Agnew to become one of the most powerful officials in Maryland history, was convicted Tuesday in federal court on political corruption charges involving women and horses.

On the same day as his Oct. 7 sentencing on mail fraud and racketeering charges, Mandel also will be stripped of office under state law unless an immediate request for a new trial is successful. That is considered most unlikely.

He could receive up to a 105-year prison term, but that also is considered unlikely.

The verdict against Mandel and five codefendants: Irvin Kovens, W. Dale Hess, Harry W. Rodgers III, William A. Rodgers, and Ernest N. Cory Jr. came on the 13th day of deliberations by the jury of seven men and five women.

AT THE CENTER of the government case was Mandel's need, despite an annual salary of $25,000, for hundreds of thousands of dollars for a divorce settlement from his first wife, Barbara, so he could marry socialite Jeanne Dorsey.

His codefendants, all close friends and political confidants except for Cory, wanted the legislature to take action that would make their secret investment in a horse track more valuable, with the most important bill allowing more days of racing at the track.

Government prosecutors alleged Mandel took more than $350,000 in gifts and benefits, mostly to pay for the cost of his divorce, from his codefendants in exchange for influencing General Assembly action on the track legislation.

Mandel, 57, leaned back in his chair, looking dazed, while the 129 separate verdicts — more than 20 for each defendant — were read. The other defendants sat calmly. Mandel was found guilty on 17 counts of mail fraud and one of racketeering.

Marshals cleared a path through hundreds of spectators, many of them unfriendly and calling out insults, to a waiting limousine for Mandel and his wife, the younger woman he saw se-

Dist. 21 talks face break down: Brady

by DIANE GRANAT

Contract talks between teachers and the board of education in Wheeling Township Dist. 21 "have almost totally broken down" because of disagreements on salaries, fringe benefits and teaching conditions, union pres. Hugh Brady said Tuesday.

Administrators representing the board's side, however, said the two groups have "moved closer" to an agreement and that the administration is "very optimistic" about reaching an agreement in the 1977-78 contract negotiations.

But in a letter sent Tuesday to 350 of the district's 420 teachers, Brady said the latest bargaining session Monday was "unproductive" and the union negotiating team is "pessimistic" about a settlement being reached before school opens Tuesday.

Monday's four-hour negotiating session was the eleventh since talks on a new teachers' contract began in May. The next session is scheduled Monday. The existing two-year contract expired in June.

A MASS MEETING of teachers is planned for 4 p.m. Tuesday to ratify a contract if an agreement is reached Monday, Brady said.

If there is no settlement, teachers will decide at Tuesday's meeting whether to continue negotiating, declare an impasse, form crisis committees to organize for a strike or "to initiate steps which could lead to a strike vote," Brady's letter said.

Brady told the teachers major unsettled items include salaries, insurance benefits, the involuntary transfer of teachers, reduction in force procedures for nontenured teachers, the number of sick leave days and the length of the contract.

The letter said the board is offering teachers an 8.1 per cent salary increase for the coming school year. The teachers, however, are asking an over-all 9.8 per cent pay increase, union sources said.

The district's current salary schedule ranges from $9,686 annually for a beginning teacher with no experience to $20,830 for a teacher with a master's degree, additional graduate credit and 20 years of experience.

The major disagreement between the board and teachers, union sources said, concerns the teachers' request for participation in an insurance welfare trust offered by the Illinois Education Assn., a statewide teachers union with which Dist. 21's union is affiliated.

THE INSURANCE program would provide dental coverage and pay for the cost of prescription drugs, fringe benefits which Dist. 21 teachers now do not receive, according to the union sources.

Supt. Kenneth Gill Tuesday said he would not respond to the union's comments about specific negotiationg issues because of a gag rule outlined in bargaining procedures.

Gill said, however, references in Brady's letter to a breakdown in negotiations is "union rhetoric" designed to "incite people."

The board's team is "very optimistic about the negotiations," Gill said. "The negotiations have been on a very friendly and productive basis all summer." He said the contract agreement toward which the two groups were moving "seemed satisfactory to all sides."

The last contract settlement in September 1975 provided a two-year contract which expired in June.

THERE IS A mutual admiration between Christopher Lopez and Rolling Meadows firemen. Christopher, who is deaf but can faintly hear the sound of shrill sirens, was a special guest Tuesday at the city's fire station. Firemen there gave the 6-year-old Mount Prospect boy his own fire hat.

Deafness doesn't disturb boy's day as a firefighter

by RUTH MUGALIAN

Six-year-old Christopher Lopez smiled as a call came into the Rolling Meadows Fire Station.

"He can hear that echoing," his mother said. "I can tell by his eyes."

As the engine rolled out of the station with lights flashing and sirens wailing, Christopher pointed and uttered a cry of delight.

"All he wants to be is a fireman," his mother Nancy said. "I don't know how I'm going to tell him a fireman can't be deaf."

CHRISTOPHER WAS born deaf. But ther is one sound he can hear — sirens.

"He can feel trains vibrating and hear sirens when they're really close," Mrs. Lopez said. "So he just loves this. When we're driving and we see fire trucks he gets hysterical. We have to stop."

Christopher was invited to the Rolling Meadows Fire Station Tuesday for the second time in a year. He climbed aboard the trucks, squirted water and watched the firefighters slide down the pole.

Rick Virgl, manager of the Banana Boat restaurant on Kirchoff Road, and a friend of Mrss. Lopez, set up the visit.

"I was really shy about bothering these guys again," Mrs. Lopez said. "But Rick said they wouldn't mind."

THAT WAS OBVIOUS as the firefighters vied for Christopher's attention, pointing out equipment, taking him aboard the trucks and offering him coats and hats to put on.

As Acting Fire Chief Ted Loesch rang a silver bell on an engine, most of the people in the room flinched. But Christopher smiled and turned. He could almost hear it and he placed his hand over it. The next time Loesch rang the bell, the sound was muffled, but Christopher could "hear" it better than ever.

Christopher never will be able to speak, his mother said. He also cannot read, except for occasionally recognizing his own name.

So when the firefighters presented him with a fire hat with his name on it, they weren't sure he would understand.

"Whose name is that?" Mrs. Lopez asked him verbally and with her hands.

Chris hesitated, then pointed to himself.

He then licked his finger and ran it acorss the name and smiled. It didn't rub off.

AFTER ABOUT 45 minutes, Mrs. Lopez asked him if he wanted to go home. He shook his head. A few minutes later he told his mother in sign language that he wasn't ready to leave.

But his mother finally persuaded him. Christopher went to his Mount Prospect home and his own collection of toy fire trucks.

Christopher may never be "Christopher, big boy fireman" as he told his mother he wants to be, but for awhile Tuesday he probably was in his own mind.

Infant dies after attack over cigaret

"Life is cheap," a policeman said.

"Over just a cigaret a little girl loses her life. It's another senseless killing."

Chicago homicide Commander Joseph Dileonardi referred to the death of 7-week-old Jackie Moore Tuesday. She was hit on the head by a man who asked her father for a cigaret, DiLeonardi said.

Wilson Moore, 21, told the man he did not have another cigaret. A short time later the man returned with a board, began swinging at Moore but instead hit Jackie.

Moore and Jackie's mother, Carla, 21, were walking on Chicago's West Side Monday when the attack occurred. Police later arrested Darnell Anderson, 21.

Jackie died seven hours after being admitted to Loyola Hospital, Maywood. She underwent brain surgery but never regained consciousness, the hospital staff said.

Carter under fire over Lance affair

From Herald news services

President Carter held another presidential news conference Tuesday and for the first time in his presidency could be described as under fire.

But if he felt beleaguered by the questions about the ethics of his budget director and friend, Bert Lance, he did not show it.

If he felt angry or abused, he did not show that either.

Outwardly, he had his usual determined air of calm.

CARTER HAD come to office making special promises. He would provide a government "as good as the people."

Accepting the Democratic nomination 13 months ago in Madison Square Garden, he had said, "I can see no reason why big-shot crooks should go free while the poor ones go to jail."

He came to the news conference in a heavy coat of makeup for the cameras. In person, that gave his face a ghost-like cast.

His voice seemed soft. His usual ebullience was missing.

He opened with four announcements on other matters: South Africa, Panama, Rhodesia, China. He noted Sec. of State Cyrus Vance was in Peking.

"THIS EVENING he is having a banquet," he said, weakly.

Reporters, however, came to talk about Lance, not Vance. Some brought with them last week's report by the comptroller of the currency.

The report found no grounds for criminal prosecution of Lance for his practices while an executive of the Calhoun First National Bank. But it raised "unresolved questions as to what constitutes acceptable banking practice."

Carter handled 14 questions — eight on Lance. He seemed surprised only when a questioner said Lance, seven times since taking office, had overdrawn on his checking account.

He took a deep breath.

He grinned and grimaced, both at once.

"Is that in the report?" he asked.

WELL, HE said, he, too, had written checks for which there were no funds and so had Mrs. Carter.

"Obviously it's better not to write overdrafts," he said. Again, a small grin.

But overdrafts are no test of character; Lance is "one of the most competent and intelligent people that I have known in my life."

He suggested the "success or failure" of his administration could ride on who was at the Office of Management and Budget. He wanted Lance there.

Carter referred to his friend as "Bert," or "Bert Lance," and "Mr. Lance."

He said Lance had been investigated by the comptroller's office in Atlanta, twice by the Justice Dept., twice by the Senate, again by the comptroller, now again by two Senate committees.

THIS IS proper, he said. But it also is proper, he suggested, for a person exonerated in investigation to be per-

Soviets dislike individuals who get too piggy

MOSCOW (UPI) — An enterprising Soviet mechanic named Nikolai Vasilivich Maslovsky managed to turn salvaged farm machinery parts into grain, grain into fat pigs, and fat pigs into money.

The money he turned into a new Volga automobile, a house full of new possessions and a comfortable bank account.

The only problem with Maslovsky's life, according to a recent edition of the Kazakhstanskaya Pravda, was that a special anti-corruption squad and the Kustanaysky regional court managed to turn Maslovsky from a free man into a prisoner doing six years.

THE PROVINCIAL Soviet newspaper said Maslovsky earned only about 100 rubles ($138) a month as chief of a machinery yard but was living a rich life.

Investigators found that he stripped old farm combines, cultivators and sowing machines of still usable spare parts which were in great demand on the state farms of the region.

The parts could be traded for entire truckloads of grain and chaff provided by grateful farm managers who were willing to do anything to keep their combines rolling.

Maslovsky then bought pigs off his neighbors at the state controlled price of 1.19 rubles ($1.65) per kilogram (2.2 pounds) and fattened them on the free grain and chaff.

THE FAT PIGS were sold on the free market at 3.50 rubles ($4.83) a kilo.

When the anti-corruption squad raided Maslovsky's home they found 15 pigs of over one year in age, 14 pigs under one year old, more than 14,000 kilograms of grain and chaff, and a sizeable flock of chickens.

The Kazakhstanskaya Pravda said Maslovsky violated a law requiring all usable spare machinery parts to be handed over to the state and other laws limiting individuals to private ownership of no more than 1,000 kilos of grain and chaff and no more than two pigs.

The court sentenced Maslovsky to six years prison and confiscation of all his property — including the pigs.

FBI to look into railroad pranks

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has been called into the investigation of two morning pranks the authorities said could have caused train derailments on the Soo Line R.R. in Des Plaines.

Charles E. Brady, a signal maintenance man for Soo Line, told police that Sunday and Monday mornings he found the tracks had been tampered with by an unknown number of persons.

Police said spikes were found inside track switch points, signal devices were broken and bolts on the track were flattened.

Both police and security personnel from the Soo Line contacted the FBI Monday to look into the two attempted train derailments. Police had no suspects late Tuesday.

Berkowitz pleads innocent in murders

by JOHN MOODY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pajama-clad David Berkowitz pleaded innocent Tuesday to the "Son of Sam" murders of two Queens women and was ordered held pending the results of psychiatric tests to determine his mental competence to stand trial.

Berkowitz, of Yonkers, N.Y., sat expressionless and spoke only once during the 20-minute arraignment in the sixth floor day room of Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn, where he is being studied by psychiatrists.

Meanwhile in Brooklyn, Supreme Court Administrative Judge Charles Rubin announced he had determined he has jurisdiction to hold hearings to determine whether 10 hours of tapes purportedly made with Berkowitz and offered to literary agent Scott Meredith actually exist.

"This may be a bunch of nonsense, but I want to determine that there has been no flim-flammery . . . in this case," Rubin said.

RUBIN SAID witnesses would be called into his chambers or a closed courtroom and subpoenas would be issued if necessary. He said he would begin drawing up a list of witnesses next week.

Manacled and under heavy guard, the defendant wore a striped blue bathrobe, sea green pajamas and soft cloth slippers as he was led into the room and seated at a table with his three defense attorneys.

Queens Supreme Court Justice Leo Brown, presiding from a makeshift court bench covered with a white hospital bedsheet, asked softly, "Are you David Berkowitz?"

"Yes, I am," responded the 24-year-old postal worker in barely audible tones.

The court clerk then read each of the five indictments against Berkowitz, charging him with the .44-caliber revolver slayings of Christine Freund last Jan. 30 and Virginia Voskerichian March 8.

To each count, Ira Jultak, one of three defense attorneys, responded "not guilty" on behalf of Berkowitz.

HE ALSO PLEADED innocent to seven counts of attempted murder, five counts of first degree assault and five counts of illegal possession of a weapon resulting from the wounding of five other persons in "Son of Sam's" five nightime ambushes in Queens during the last year.

Two other intended victims, represented in the attempted murder counts, escaped injury in the attacks.

Brown ordered a hearing Sept. 1 on Berkowitz' mental fitness to stand trial.

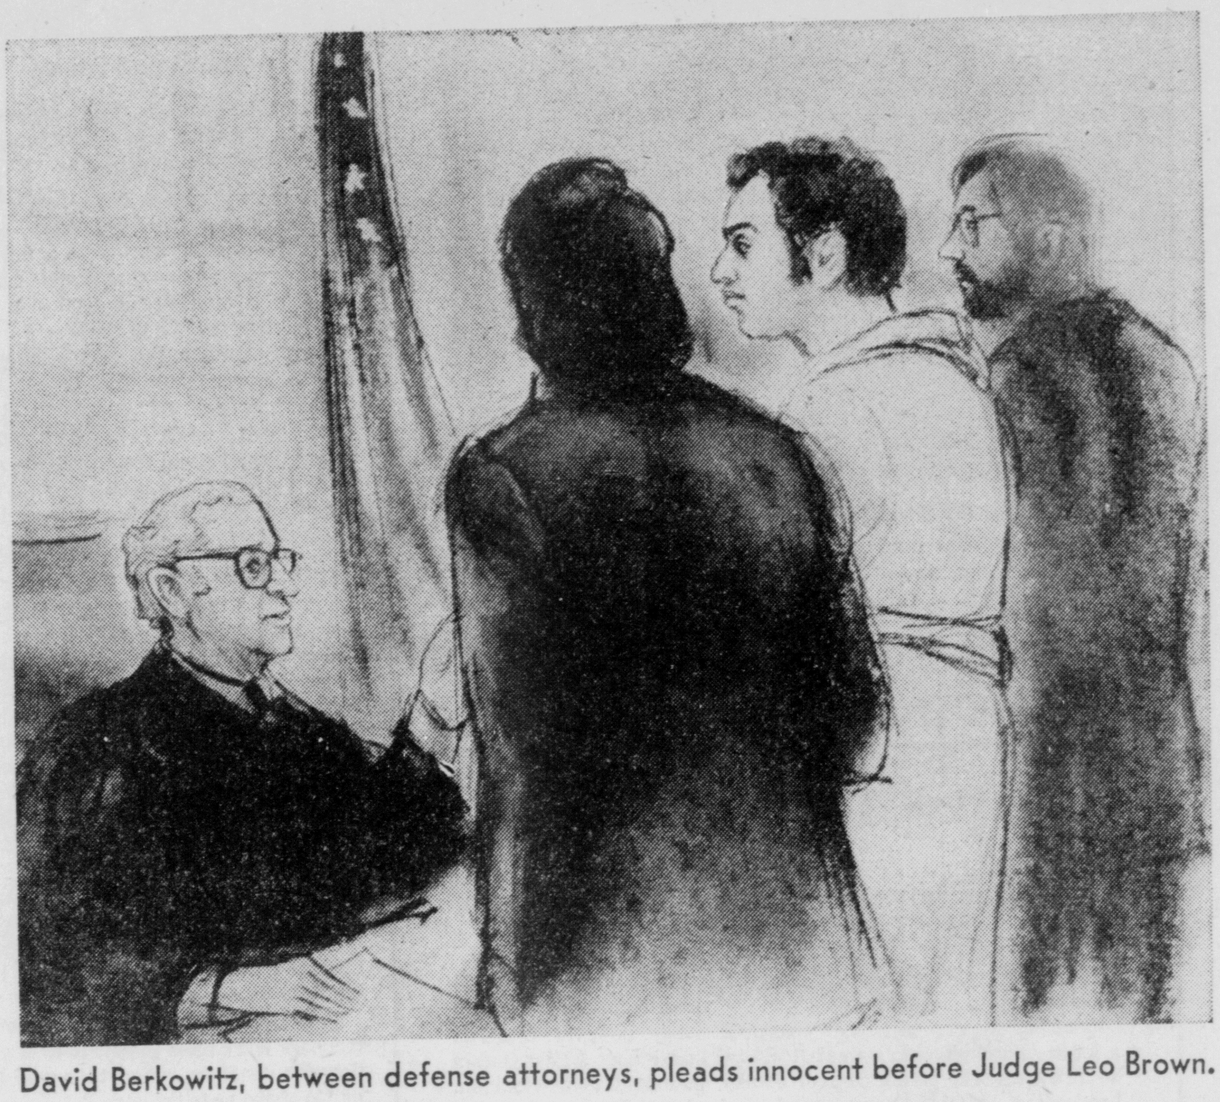
In all, "Son of Sam" killed six young people and wounded seven others during a year-long reign of terror with a .44-caliber revolver, the same gun police said was found in Berkowitz' car when he was arrested outside his home Aug. 10.

He still faces arriagnment at the hospital today for three "lovers' lane" slayings in the Bronx. He already has pleaded innocent to a Brooklyn indictment charging him with the July 31 death of Stacy Moskowitz, the last of "Son of Sam's" victims.

PROSECUTORS SAID admissions that police claim Berkowitz made at the time of his arrest would be used against him if he ever comes to trial.

Defense attorney Mark Heller already has indicated he will offer a defense of insanity if the alleged "Son of Sam" is found competent. Hospital psychiatrists say their report on the defendant would be ready by Aug. 30.

The arraignment on the Queens charges took place inside the Brooklyn hospital amid tight security because authorities said they wanted to avoid the "circus atmosphere" that prevailed last week when Berkowitz was arraigned in state Supreme Court in Brooklyn.



David Berkowitz, between defense attorneys, pleads innocent before Judge Leo Brown.

The book, filled with sex, love, death and earthy dialog, reportedly has something for everyone.

Vance meets with member of ruling Chinese circle

PEKING (UPI) — After five hours of meetings with the Chinese foreign Minister, Sec. of State Cyrus Vance was informed Wednesday that he will be meeting a member of the ruling Chinese triumvirate for discussions about normalizing relations between the two countries.

American officials said early Wednesday that Vance will be meeting Teng Hsaio - ping Wednesday afternoon at 3 p.m. local time (2 a.m. CDT). Vance also was invited to have dinner with Teng at the Summer Palace in Peking Wednesday evening. Reporters accompanying Vance have also been invited.

Teng, who was recently rehabilitated and restored to power, is a vice chairman of the party and a deputy premier. He met Vance in October 1975 when Vance was on a private tour of China.

ALTHOUGH CLEARLY not as influential as Hua Kud-feng, the premier and Communist party chairman, Teng is a powerful member of the hierarchy and is regarded as the leading proponent for continued good relations with those nations which can give China technical help.

American officials said that the five hours of talks with Foreigh Minister Huang Hua have dealt mainly with a review of American foreign policy by Vance.

Huang — while officially Vance's governmental counterpart — is not a member of the ruling Communist Hierarchy.

The secretary held a second round of talks Tuesday with Foreign Minister Huang Hua and his staff. He also delivered a letter from President Carter addressed to Chairman Hua, who was ratified as Mao Tsetung's successor by the 11th Chinese Communist Party Congress just before Vance arrived.

HUANG AND HIS staff have mostly listened to Vance outline U.S. policy on Asia and Europe, an American who sat in on the talks said. The Chinese have asked a few questions but the real negotiating has not yet begun.

The U.S. official, who is a member of the secretary's team of eight to 12 negotiators, said the Chinese appeared to be in no hurry to discuss either establishment of full diplomatic relations or the future of Taiwan.

Vance and his advisers considered the normalization issue to be the key point of their visit to the mainland and would like to move forward, the official said, but they were not impatient at the lack of progress, especially because a hasty attitude could prompt the Chinese to ask concessions.

U.S. spokesman Hodding Carter III noted Vance mentioned the subject of Sino-U.S. relations in the meeting with Huang, but said the "real back and forth" will not take place until Wednesday or Thursday.

MEMBERS OF THE Vance party said they had the impression the Chinese were preoccupied with their own domestic problems. The Communist congress and central committee meetings just concluded stressed the regime's unity but declared China must press a massive redevelopment effort for the next two decades to become a world superpower by the end of the century.

An 81-page political statement Hua read during the party congress, released only since the Americans arrived, indicates the Chinese are determined to absorb Taiwan, but it appeared to be deliberately vague on details.

Vance and Huang and their staffs met for 2½ hours Tuesday morning at the Great Hall of the People while Vance's wife and other aides visited the Great Wall, a 90-minute drive northwest of the city, and the Ning Tombs. The secretary toured a museum later and watched a special performance by Chinese acrobats in the evening.

Voyager on course after collision

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — America's Voyager 2 space probe sped toward Jupiter on a flawless course Tuesday, despite a "million-to-one" collision with its burned-out rocket motor 18 hours after launch Saturday that briefly threw the craft tumbling and upset its computers, scientists reported.

Voyager, on a course that will take it to the largest planet in the solar system sometime in 1979, had scientists baffled shortly after takeoff from Cape Canaveral, Fla., when computers went haywire.

With most of the problems now solved, officials at Jet Propulsion Laboratory who are tracking the space probe explained Tuesday what they thought happened following the separation of Voyager from the propulsion module.

SPOKESMAN Don Bain said that an hour into the flight, the Voyager was blasted loose from its 1,500-pound solid rocket motor that gave the spacecraft its final boost into space.

About 11 minutes after separation the Voyager experienced extreme turbulence, still unexplained.

Then, some 18 hours after the separation, the burned-out rocket motor and Voyager, traveling in about the same trajectory, apparently collided, causing the space probe to begin tumbling.

"Engineers have detected no damage because of the unexpected bump," Bain said. "It is not related in any way to the problem of the science boom," which carries the craft's two television cameras and scientific experiments.

THE BOOM WAS reported near full extension, although onboard computers could not confirm full extension and the problem was described as minor because the cameras and experiments still could carry out its mission in the boom's present position.

After the apparent collision, onboard computers began crazily switching from one gyro to another. But scientists commanded Voyager to lock on the sun, and it obeyed, steadying the ship and allowing the computers to resume functioning normally.

"Although it appears remote that a collision between the two separated sections of the spacecraft could occur, Voyager engineers cannot account for the disturbance to Voyager in any other way," said John Casani, project manager.

Casini said scientists were considering using one of Voyager's instruments — a photopolarimeter — to search the skies for any foreign object in the vicinity of the area where the spacecraft hit.

11-country coffee cartel set to stabilize world price

MEXICO CITY — (UPI) — Eleven Latin American coffee-producing nations agreed Tuesday to establish a coffee cartel to stabilize prices on the world market.

There was "absolutely total agreement" among the participating countries, according to a Mexican Coffee Institute official.

The 11 countries — Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Ecuador, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua and Venezuela — will propose the establishment of a "regulatory fund" at the International Coffee Organization meeting in Nairobi next week, the official said.

MCI sources say the Latin American proposal will be approved by the 43 member nations of the ICO. The Latin American producers yield 80 per cent of the total world coffee output.

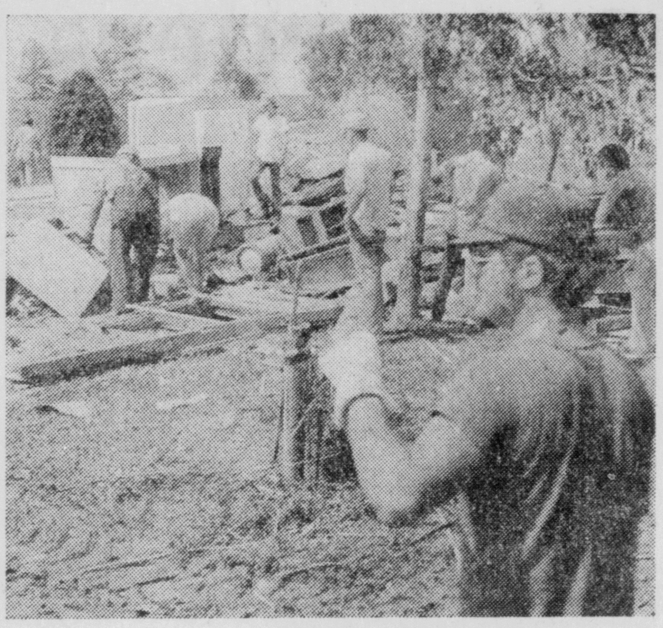
IF APPROVED BY the ICO, the fund will guarantee stable export earnings for Third World nations which depend on coffee sales for international trade, according to MCI Director Fausto Cantu Pena.

Yalle G. Agbre of the Ivory Coast, the African observer at the two-day meeting in Mexico City, cautioned that other coffee-producing countries would not automatically follow the Latin American lead.

"It is premature to speculate whether the African nations will agree with the Mexican proposal. The political implications are great and will be studied carefully," he said.

The proposal to form a cartel to stabilize world coffee prices, which have been falling over the past six months, was first advanced by Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

When asked how soon the coffee "regulatory fund" might be instituted, one Mexican official said, "That, sir, is the $64 million question."



RESIDENTS GATHERED together Tuesday to sift through the rubble that had once been their homes following a tornado in the Lake Mattoon area Sunday. The residents found little left to salvage.

Cop's firing urged in suspect shooting

Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey said Tuesday he will not prosecute a suspended policeman accused of fatally shooting a handcuffed 17-year-old burglary suspect. Carey, however, urged in a letter to Police Supt. James Rochford that officer Philip Onesto be fired. Onesto is accused of fatally wounding John Neuman, handcuffed with his hands behind his back, while the youth was attempting to run from police.

Foul play cited in exec case

Police in Birmingham, Ala. said Monday that foul play is suspected in the disappearance of a Chicago steel corporation executive who was last seen leaving a downtown nightclub. Investigators said Nigel Harlan, 43, vice president of Ogden Steel Corp., was in Birmingham for business meetings. They said he was last seen in the early morning hours of Thursday. "We've checked out any number of leads, most of them concerning a young woman the man was supposed to have left a local nightspot with at about 1 a.m. Thursday," said Police Lt. Francis Sartain. "But thus far, nothing. All dead ends." He said police are searching for the young woman, who sat with Harlan and his business associates, before they left the club.

Bilandic offers busing protection

The city will protect black children who transfer schools this fall, Mayor Michael A. Bilandic said Tuesday. "I don't think these children have anything to fear," Bilandic said. Chicago officials have been urging black children to participate in a voluntary transfer plan to predominantly white schools in September. The Rev. Jesse Jackson, president of Operation PUSH, had accused Bilandic of being insensitive to the dangers which face the black children.

RTA slights minorities: Kemp

A Regional Transit Authority board member who is black, James Kemp, Tuesday criticized the RTA's proposal for promoting minorities was not adequate. As a result, the draft was sent back to staff planners. Whites would be promoted to higher level jobs while blacks and other minorities would remain in the lesser jobs under the proposal, Kemp said. About 25 per cent of the 140 RTA staff members are members of minority groups, a spokesman said.

Escaped convict was 'trusted'

A convicted bank robber who disappeared in Wrigley Field while on an outing from the Metropolitan Correctional Center had many other chances to escape, Acting Warden William Messersmith said Tuesday. Harold Jeffries had trusty status at the federal lockup in downtown Chicago. He worked with the prison maintenance crew. "Jeffries had many opportunities over the months to disappear," Messersmith said. Very often, he said, a prisoner who escapes decides to do it on the spur of the moment.

Jeffries, 42, Willisville, has not been seen since Monday when he went to the men's room during the Cubs game. Jeffries was one of 18 prisoners taken to the game by a correctional counselor and a correctional officer, Messersmith said. The two correctional staff members were not required to have the prisoners in sight all the time, he said, because the prisoners were considered trustworthy.

"These trips are rare," Messersmith said. "We haven't had one since November." Jeffries was under a 15-year term for his conviction of the $33,000 robbery of the Bank of St. Mary's, Mo., in August, 1972. Three men robbed the bank and Jeffries was captured the same day.

Memory of jail beating is cloudy

A prisoner De Witt County Sheriff Keith Vo Long is accused of striking testified Tuesday that he was hit by someone at the county jail in 1974 but he can't remember who. "Someone struck me but I can't say (who) offhand," John W. Wilmoth Jr. said during the first day of testimony in the trial of Long, indicted on 18 counts of misconduct in office. However, former deputy Steven Tamborini, now a Clinton police commissioner, testified Long did strike Wilmoth three or four times with his open hand. During cross-examination, defense attorney John E. Gambill asked him why he did not report the incident at the time.

"It was not my place to report on my superiors," the former deputy replied. Wilmoth, 25, said he could remember few facts about the incident but admitted he had been drinking the night in question, Feb. 14, 1974. He said he pleaded guilty to the battery and disorderly conduct charges lodged against him then. In his opening statement, Gambill said Wilmoth "was extremely wild and acting like an animal" that night.

New execution method proposed

Rep. Roman Kosinski, D-Chicago, Tuesday introduced a bill which would make lethal drug injections the method of execution for Illinois' new death penalty. Current law stipulates the electric chair must be used. Kosinski said he wants his bill, patterned after an Oklahoma law, to be discussed in the October special legislative session on crime.

Parochial loyalty only goes so far

Catholic teachers want equality

by PAM BIGFORD THOMAS

In the traditionally quiet ranks of Chicago Catholic school teachers, a distinct rumble can be heard.

The noise is coming from the Catholic Archdiocese Teachers Assn., the parochial schools' answer to a union, which is counting on that rumble turning into a membership explosion — and the fuse may be lit Tuesday.

Usually low-key, the association will hold a major rally Tuesday at St. Zachary School, 567 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines, to talk to teachers about wages, benefits and the potential power of a strong union, something CATA President Mary Van Wazer says the union presently is not.

SPURRED ON by a recent Circuit Court ruling that the Catholic Church does not have to recognize teacher unions as well as by a desire to raise parochial school salaries, CATA officials have decided to mount a major drive to increase membership — and therefore power — from the present 2,500 to a number nearer the total of the 6,000 kindergarten through eighth grade teachers in the archdiocese, which is the largest in the country.

Mrs. Van Wazer, a third grade teacher at St. Zachary, said she wants to explain to teachers that the Circuit Court decision does not have to be viewed as a defeat.

The decision, she said, proves teachers don't have to belong to a nationwide teachers union to negotiate or "to strike or to threaten."

The church has already publicly stated teachers have the right to organize. And the church can't very well say now that it won't negotiate with its independent teacher unions, she said.

BUT THE KEY to getting what you want in negotiations is to have a strong union, and that means not merely representing a third or half of the teachers, but nearly all of them, she said.

"We have always said that we are only as strong as our membership," Mrs. Van Wazer said. "The Cardinal (John Cardinal Cody) has always listened, but not always as closely as we would like.

"If we only have 2,500 teachers with us, our need will only set so heavily on his ear. He can say not all the teachers want more money — not all the teachers want better Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage. But if we have 5,000 members we hope that they will listen to us."

Catholic school teachers have a long way to go to reach public school salary parity. While most Northwest suburban elementary school districts will pay beginning teachers about $10,000 this September, a beginning parochial school teacher will receive only $7,715.

BUT MRS. VAN Wazer acknowledges that "we realize by making the choice to teach in this system the dollars are limited. Most parishes can't ask for more money. You can't get blood out of a turnip. We know that."

Yet, she said, "dedication only goes so far. A living wage is needed. Not many people realize that after a teacher has taught 10 years, she does not receive a (step) increase for five more years."

This year a 10-year teacher in the 400-school archdiocese will make $11,063. A 15-year teacher will make $11,567 and after 20 years can earn $12,071.

While a 20-year public school teacher often earns close to $20,000, the Chicago parochial salaries are comparable to the New York City and Philadelphia archdiocesan salaries.

MRS. VAN WAZER will say that she does not know how single teachers can live on that salary. She will tell you about the male teacher supporting a wife and two children who gave up working for CATA because he had to work harder at his part-time job to make ends meet. She will say that men are being forced out of the system.

But unlike most public school union leaders, she so far will not criticize those in charge of doling out the money and benefits: the administration and most importantly, the Cardinal.

Cardinal Cody is the ultimate decision-maker in the Catholic school system. Unlike the public schools, where a school board of citizens runs the district, in the Catholic Archdiocese the school board is merely advisory and the Cardinal answerable to virtually no one.

So it is important not to criticize the Cardinal too harshly, not to ruffle his feathers too badly, even as a union president.

SO MRS. VAN Wazer won't come right out and say teachers are worried about more than salary. They're worried, though, that in this system their tenure is worth nothing because provisions can be removed from the teacher contract without the teachers having much say about it. They are worried that older teachers will be fired because they make too much money.

They are worried that with all the marbles in the Cardinal's corner, their needs and rights may go unnoticed.

"We're supporting the Cardinal. We always have," Mrs. Van Wazer is careful to say. "We're not trying to throw mud in his eye. But we're not a rubber stamp either."

Mrs. Van Wazer said the association wants to continue to work through the archdiocese but it wants some improvements, too. In light of the recent court decision, a new union model like CATA will be needed throughout the country, one that she says is not an adversary of the archdiocese but a part of it.

At the rally Tuesday she said she hopes to convince the teachers that their individual schools "are only little cogs in a very big wheel," and that the cogs need to get organized to get rolling.

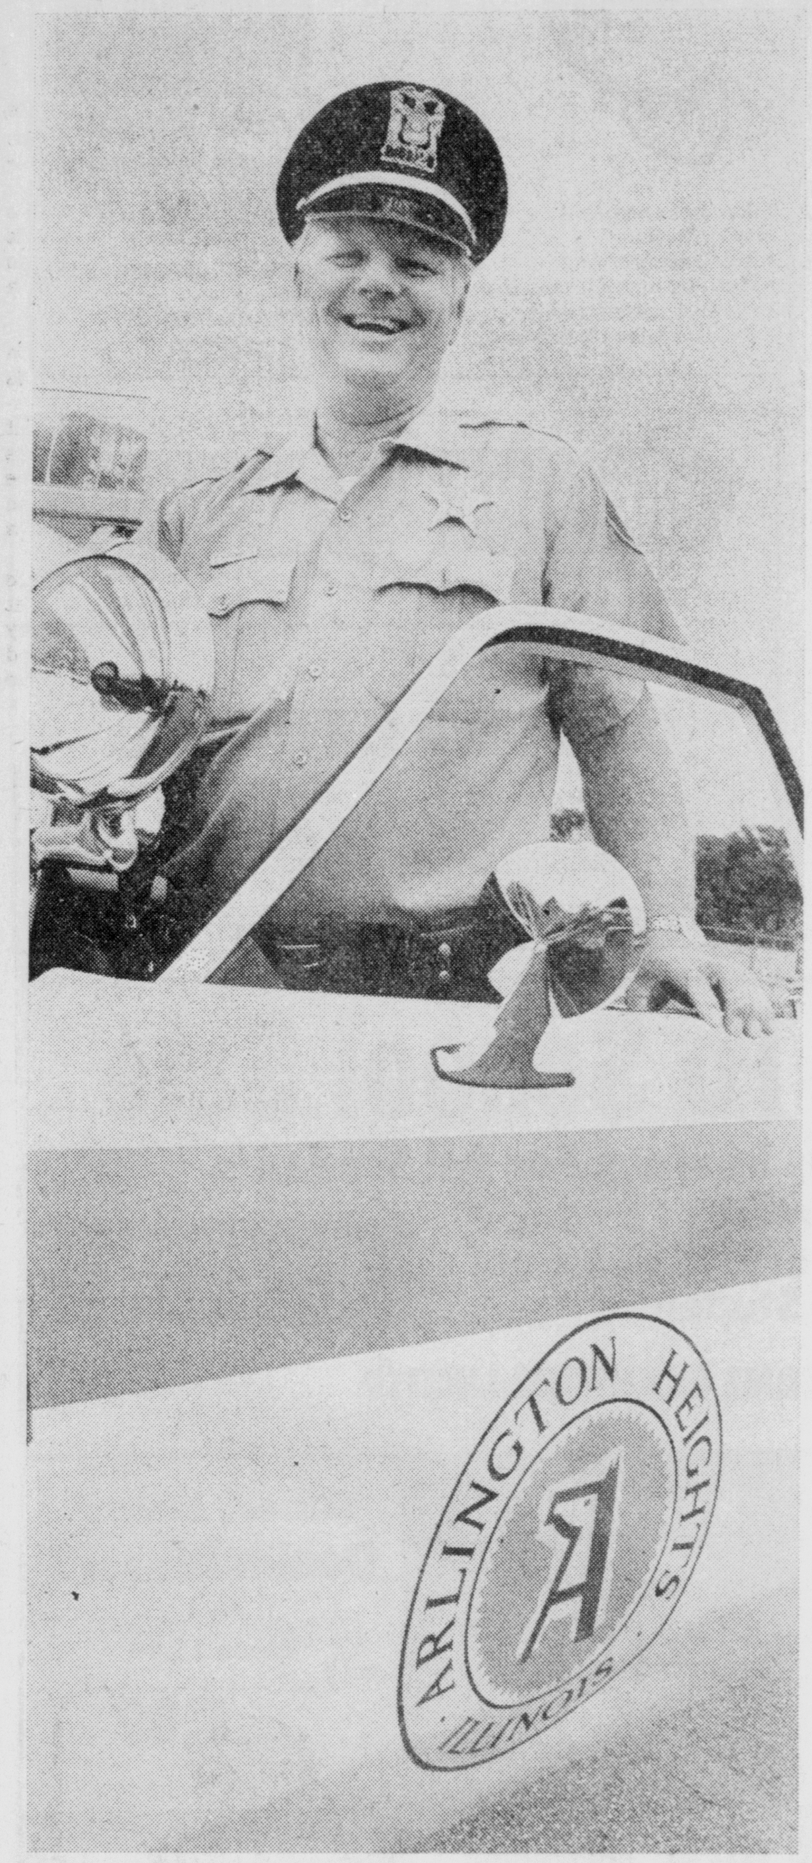
A veteran of 20 years, cop recalls early shakes



DARYL C. STILLE flashes his well-known smile which officers at the Arlington Heights Police Dept. say they will miss come October. That's when Stille retires after serving 20 years as a patrolman in the village.

by KEN VANDERBEEK

Twenty years ago rookie policeman Daryl C. Stille was faced with his first big arrest.

His late afternoon shift had started calmly but soon after midnight while he and a partner were on their regular patrol of Arlington Heights, he received a call: a prowler was lurking not far away.

When the two policemen arrived at the scene, Stille noticed the barely visible silhouette of the prowler by a bush about 20 feet away.

"I tried to stalk him like a good cop," Stille said. "But it didn't work and worse, the guy started running for me.

"I NERVOUSLY TOLD him to stop; that my gun was cocked and I'd shoot if he didn't," Stille said. "Luckily he finally did stop, but I was near to the point of fainting, thinking that he wouldn't.

"When I look back I wonder if I would have shot him had he not stopped immediately."

Ironically, Stille's first and perhaps biggest pressures as a policeman came that night in 1957. And Stille, who will retire this October on the anniversary of his 20th year as a patrolman, said there are more of these kinds of pressures today than when he started.

Stille, 49, said he remembers a quieter village back in 1957, one less tarnished by crime.

"The comparison of crimes in those days with today is phenomenal," he said. "Back in the '50s there weren't more than 2,500 crimes a year. But last year our police responded to more than 36,000 calls in Arlington Heights, and that's only a conservative estimate."

"OF COURSE, when I started, there were only 14,000 residents in the village as opposed to 80,000 now, but that's still no excuse," he said. "There's more crimes per number of residents today than there ever was."

Nevertheless, despite the soar in crimes during the last two decades, Stille's friends on the force say he has never lost his smile or his willingness to serve the community.

"We're really going to miss Daryl," said Sgt. Norm Busse, a friend of Stille for 18 years. "He's the type of guy you can't say enough about; he is beyond reproach.

"And one thing I'll especially miss is that constant smile of his," Busse said. "It'll be a shame not to see that around the department after October."

Stille said he always admired police as a child growing up in northwest Iowa, partly because they always smiled at him.

"I ALWAYS LIKED them also for the small things they did for the community," the brawny patrolman said.

Stille did many of these "small things" during his 20 years as a patrolman. From 1966-1968 he worked part-time as a police counselor at Arlington Heights High School, 502 W. Euclid Ave., teaching students respect for the law.

"I made a lot of good friends with the kids, even the ones considered the greasers and drug hounds," he said. "Several of the kids are rookies now. And they're probably just as green now as I was then."

Village officials to discuss water sharing studies

Arlington Heights officials tonight will discuss whether to take part in a study by SHARE + 3 on the acquisition of Lake Michigan water.

The village board's finance committee also will discuss the feasibility of joining Palatine in an alternative water study.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. in the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

THE COMMITTEE is expected to make a recommendation on whether to contribute $10,000 for SHARE + 3's engineering plans for tying into Chicago's water system at O'Hare Airport. The village has been hesitant to make such a committment, saying other alternatives for bringing lake water to the Northwest suburbs also should be studied.

However, Arlington Heights' hopes of financing a study on buying lake water from Evanston were diminished earlier this month when Mount Prospect officials voted to finance only the SHARE + 3 plan. That decision leaves only Arlington Heights and Palatine as active members of the DAMP water commission, which has opposed a hookup with Chicago without exploring other alternatives.

Members of SHARE + 3 include Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine.

Palatine officials voted Monday to pay $10,000 for the SHARE + 3 study as well os $13,000 for an Evanston study.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS may also decide to contribute to both studies, Village Pres. James T. Ryan said Tuesday.

"We still think we should compare all the alternatives, so there's a good chance we'll be going both ways," Ryan said. "Of course, one of the first things that will have to be done is to see whether it's worthwhile to get a full-scale study done on the Evanston option if it's only Palatine and us financing it," he said.

The cost of a study on getting Lake Michigan water from Evanston has been estimated as high as $50,000.

Appeals last week from Palatine and Arlington Heights officials for Mount Prospect to reconsider the decision to pay only for a SHARE + 3 study were unsuccessful.

DAMP officials admit the cost of building a pipeline to O'Hare probably would be less expensive than building one to Evanston, but they believe Chicago may charge more than Evanston for the lake water.

Another advantage of DAMP is that the water commission, unlike SHARE + 3, is a legal entity created by legislation that can issue bonds to finance the project without affecting the individual villages' bonding powers.

DAMP backer asks further study

An official of the DAMP water commission has critizied Mount Prospect for abandoning the commission's effort to buy Lake Michigan water from Evanston and is urging the village to continue funding DAMP studies of alternative water sources.

In a letter to Mayor Carolyn H. Krause, DAMP Comr. Robert F. Teepe said he is disturbed village trustees are opposed to paying Mount Prospect's share of a $50,000 economic study of alternatives for acquisition of lake water. Mrs. Krause Tuesday said enough studies of the problem have been made.

Rather than support plans by the DAMP commission to acquire lake water from Evanston, Mount Prospect has chosen to join communities belonging to SHARE + 3, another group formed to seek lake water, in obtaining water from Chicago through a reservoir and pipeline to be built near O'Hare Airport.

"IF WE WERE to obtain water from Evanston without the discretionary rate increases as they exist with the City of Chicago, there would be prospects for considerable savings," Teepe said.

"There would be about a $1 million savings to our communities. That's a rough figure but it gives us a basis to say let's sharpen our pencils and look closer at this thing. They (Mount Prospect) would benefit from the information so they can make the proper decision as to where they get their water from."

The DAMP commission, created by the Illinois Legislature and made up of represntatives from Mount Prospect, Palatine and Arlington Heights, has been studying alternative water sources for the suburbs for more than 20 years.

"There have been numerous studies over the years," Mrs. Krause said. "They date back to about 1958. At what point do you stop having studies on any issue? It's been discussed for many years. You finally have to one way or the other or you end up with no place at all to go for water."

Village officials earlier this summer said they no longer want to fund two different water supply studies. As a result, the village board adopted a resolution backing the plan advocated by the SHARE + 3 organization calling for a pipeline and reservoir near the airport costing between $42 million and $62 million. The cost would be shared by the eight communities which are members.

NO COST estimates have been given on the DAMP proposal to obtain water from Evanston. However, SHARE + 3 towns contend it will cost substantially more to go to the North Shore suburb because of the longer distance from the Northwest suburban area.

SHARE + 3, represents Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Palatine and Buffalo Grove and was organized in 1975 to study various routes available for obtaining Lake Michigan water.

"You have to take advantage of the water allocations so that you make it by 1980," Mrs. Krause said. "And it looks like they're (SHARE + 3) going to make it."

Mount Prospect already has committed itself to spending $10,000 for its portion of the first year of SHARE + 3 financing, including legal and engineering expenses. Meanwhile, officials from Palatine and Arlington Heights still are considering ways to buy their lake water from Evanston.

Food rations are slashed in Saigon

Refugees from Vietnam said Tuesday food rations in Saigon had been cut by up to 75 per cent, medicine is in short supply and that the Communist regime had banned the teaching of English in schools. Tran Van Nghiem, a 34-year-old English teacher, and 65 other refugees, including 21 children and 17 women, gave a detailed account of life in the old South Vietnamese capital before leaving Bangkok aboard a Japanese ship. The ship, Chuwa Maru, had picked them up from their small escape boat.

"In the past three months, rice rations have been cut from nine kilograms (about 20 pounds) per person to one or two kilograms (2.2 to 4.4 pounds) a month," Nghiem said. "Food queues could form at any time," he said. "Sometimes government officials came around at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning to wake us up and get in the food line." Nghiem said his group had planned the escape for more than two years, but the food shortages along with the banning of the teaching of English in schools had encouraged premature departures.

S. Africa denies A-test report

South Africa Foreign Minister Roelof "Pik" Botha said Tuesday he questioned the accuracy of reports that French Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud had said South Africa was preparing to test a nuclear bomb. "Even the French Ambassador doesn't believe it," Botha said. In Washington, the State Department said South Africa has given the United States "firm assurances" that it does not have a nuclear bomb and does not intend to develop one. It was the second time since Sunday that he has denied the reports about South Africa's intention to test a nuclear device.

Prominent Ugandans face trial

A total of 16 prominent Ugandans went on trial Tuesday before a military tribunal accused of plotting to overthrow President Idi Amin, Uganda radio announced. All were arrested in February shortly after Amin announced he had uncovered a plot against Uganda and two of his government ministers. The archbishop and two ministers were killed only hours after Amin read their names at a mass rally in Kampala where he announced the coup plot. Amin said the three were killed in a car crash but church and other African sources said all three were murdered in cold blood. Tanzania charged that Amin himself personally killed the archbishop.

Arafat anxious for Mideast talks

Egypt's official news agency Tuesday quoted Palestinian guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat as saying he is "anxious" to start direct talks with the United States on Middle East peace prospects. But the agency also quoted Arafat as saying that the Palestine Liberation Organization was not yet ready to announce its acceptance of a key U.N. resolution on which the U.S. offer of talks depends.

Laetrile patient promotes meeting

A cancer patient who takes six tablets of laetrile daily said Tuesdy the U.S. Food and Drug Administration which banned laetrile should, in fairness, also ban other "dangerous" substances such as water, potatoes, lemons and carrots. The man, Charles Sittig of Arlington, Tex., at one point stopped while reading a press release, uncapped an amber plastic bottle and downed two laetrile tablets. "I take six of these a day and I'll continue to take them in order to stay alive," said Sittig, looking healthy despite two years suffering from a malignant melanoma. Sittig appeared at a news conference to publicize a meeting Thursday between the Dallas-Fort Worth chapter of Citizens' Choice, an international organization active in promoting the rights of cancer patients, and Jerry Henderson of the Dallas office of the FDA.

HEW may eye pay records: Brown

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has given HEW auditors permission to examine military pay records as part of the government's crackdown on welfare fraud by federal employes, according to a letter made available Tuesday. Brown's letter to HEW Secretary Joseph Califano, dated Aug. 8, authorizes a check of the 2.1 million men and women on active duty military payrolls to determine whether any are receiving welfare benefits to which they are not entitled. Califano asked Brown for the authorization as part of Project MATCH — a jont effort by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the attorney general to expose welfare cheating by federal employes.

Man's meddling to make earth warmer: Prof

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Man's environmental interference has halted the approach of a new ice age and will mean a warmer global climate, a University of Michigan researcher said Tuesday.

Among the consequences, said botany professor David M. Gates, will be a shrinking of the Great Lakes and inland waters, a northward shift of the agricultural belt into Canada and a melting of glacial ice that will raise ocean levels.

Gates, director of the U.M. biological station, told the annual meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences that an increase of atmospheric carbon dioxide, caused by the burning of fossil fuels, will be an overwhelming weather influence in years to come.

IT WILL produce a drier midwestern climate with drastic effects on agriculture, commerce and recreation.

"This is, aside from population and food, probably the most serious problem mankind faces," he said.

"Great Lakes shipping may have trouble navigating the corridors of the various locks and rivers. Beaches would be enormous, and vast relics of civilization — glass, porcelain, refrigerators, cars and other junk — would emerge in the drying of the old lake bottom.

"With a warming of climate, agriculture will shift northward with the Corn Belt moving into Canada," Gates said. The Great Lakes region, he said, may become a wheat-growing area.

MOST OF THE changes are centuries ahead, he said, but ocean levels could begin to rise within 25 to 30 years to begin a slow inundation of coastal areas and a gradual redefinition of world geography.

"It will occur, of course, gradually, but it's a serious problem," Gates said. "Hundreds of years from now, it will lead to the displacement of millions of people."

He conceded that his theory flies in the face of long-term weather statistics, which point toward an approaching global cooling trend.

Panel studies 14-year test decline

Score dip pinned on TV, teaching

NEW YORK (UPI) — Television and relaxed teaching are pulling down American education, a special panel investigating the drop in Scholastic Aptitude Test scores said Tuesday in New York.

The tests reflect the quality of what goes on in the nation's schools.

Other things contributed to the 14-year decline, the panel found during its two-year probe of scores on the college entrance tests.

The panel said the decline is "serious business warranting careful attention by everybody interested in education."

THAT INCLUDES parents, teachers, school boards and taxpayers.

Also blamed for the drop were changes in the family's role and relaxed learning standards.

The panel has a hunch national turbulence during "a decade of distraction," made quite a difference in youth's motivation on tests — and may have had an effect on scores.

The decade referred to was between 1967 and 1975 in panel terminology. It included the Vietnam war, political assassination of youth's particular heroes, burning cities and the corruption of national leadership, Watergate.

"The panel headed by former Sec. of Labor Willard Wirtz said another contributing factor to the decline is the sharp changes during the 1960s in the composition of the group of students going on to college, and therefore, taking the college entrance exams.

THE 21-MEMBER panel called for "cool headedness about . . . the instruction this experience offers the future."

The drop in score averages since 1963 has been 49 points on the verbal sections for the SAT (from 478 in 1963 to 429 in 1977) and 32 points on the mathematical sections (from 502 to 470).

Approximately a million members of each high school class takes the SAT in either their senior or junior years, sometimes both.

The tests are scored from 200 to 800, with the larger figure being a perfect score. The colleges with the most rigorous standards, on the average, mainly admit students who score from 700 up.

Highlights of the report:

• "There has been a significant dispersal of learning activities and emphasis in the schools, reflected particularly in the adding of many elective courses and a reduction in the number of courses that all students alike are required to take." The panel pointed to the "central importance of restoring the traditions of critical reading and careful writing."

• "There is clearly observable evidence of diminished seriousness of purpose and attention to mastery of skills and knowledge . . . in the schools, the home, and the society generally." The panel hit automatic grade-to-grade promotions grade inflation, the tolerance of increased absenteeism, the lowering of the demand levels of textbooks and other teaching and learning materials and the reduction of homework.

• Noting that "by age 16, most children have spent between 10,000 and 15,000 hours watching television, more time than they have spent in school," the panel said this "detracts from homework, competes with schooling more generally and has contributed to the decline in SAT score averages." Yet "television and related forms of communication," the panel suggests, "give the future of learning its largest promise. The most constructive approach seems to us to depend . . . on the willingness of the community and the family to exercise the same responsibility for what is taught and learned this way as they have exercised with respect to older forms of education."

The Advisory Panel on SAT Score Decline was appointed in October 1975 to advise the presidents of the College Board and Educational Testing Service, sponsors and editors of the SAT college entrance examination.

No progress in teacher negotiations

Teachers' disputes with school boards in Illinois grew no worse Tuesday although negotiators involved in the state's two strikes so far this fall made no headway toward settlements.

Danville school board officials said they would dock the pay of about 500 striking teachers. The board refused to meet with a federal mediator called in by the Danville Education Association. Teachers in Danville seek higher pay and more time to plan classes.

About 9,000 Danville pupils have not started class for the fall because of the strike.

CLASSES ARE scheduled to start Thursday at Highland Community College near Freeport despite a walkout by 50 teachers disputing contract language and fringe benefits. The two sides reported no progress toward agreement.

Chicago negotiators agreed to extend the present contract for elementary and high school teachers on a day-to-day basis while bargaining continued. Chicago Teachers Union President Robert Healey, who made the announcement, said the two sides were still far apart on salary. Chicago schools open Sept. 7.

Healey said the school board postponed presenting its tentative budget for two weeks. "A good sign," he said.

Negotiators for teachers and the school board in Freeport held a long session but issued no reports. Freeport teachers authorized a strike over "financial matters." Classes are scheduled to begin Aug. 31.

A SPOKESMAN for the Illinois Education Association, the major teachers union in the state, said, "We are watching very closely Unity, Paxton, Carbondale, Herrin, Johnston City, North Clay and Mount Carmel." The IEA is also involved in the talks in Danville and Freeport.

The IEA "critical list" had 31 districts on it, he said, while 211 districts had not reached contract agreements with their teachers.

The Illinois Federation of Teachers said Tuesday it was concerned about lack of progress in negotiations at Thornton Community College. The IFT is also involved in the Highland talks.

Picket lines set up by angry firemen

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. (UPI) — The city's 11 firemen set up picket lines with signs saying "No contract, no work" Tuesday in response to the City Council's decision to table indefinitely a contract proposal.

The contract itself, differential, time and half pay and a clothing allowance were the main points in dispute.

Council member Orville Nolen, who made the motion to table the contract proposal late Monday, said, "We are not rejecting it. We are just tabling it."

Bernard Melvin, public health and safety commissioner, said he lined up 12 to 15 volunteers, some of them former firemen, to substitute for the strikers. The stand-in firemen will be paid beginning firemen's wages of $4.50 an hour, compared with the $5.25 an hour paid the firemen out on strike.

Four police cars also were assigned to check out any reports of fires and notify firemen of bona fide fires.

Bell phone shop brrings in buyers

Kevin Potter, 14 of Arlington Heights, already knows what he wants for Christmas.

Kevin wants a telephone.

It's the brown, $87 Sculptura model he saw with his mother at the Tuesday opening of the Phone Center Store at the Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg.

His mother just smiled. "We'll see," she said.

ILLINOIS BELL Telephone Co. opened its first direct retail outlet in a major shopping center Tuesday. There customers can browse among 15 styles of telephones — ranging from the basic black wall model for as little as $6 to the stylistic, gold-plated Early American for $109 — take one home and install it themselves.

Why is a public utility entering the retail business?

"Customers want more choices," said John Clendenin, Illinois Bell vice president for suburban operations.

Retailers such as Sears, Roebuck and Co. and J. C. Penney sell decorative shells because people now demand more than basic service, he said. "Adding more premium designs is becoming competitive, and that's what we're trying to address."

"The marketplace is changing, and we're just responding" said Joseph H. Johnson, Illinois Bell vice president for marketing.

THIS MARKET "offers good revenue potential" for the company, Johnson said, and it may even "improve the whole rate base operation."

And because an individual can install his own telephone, "that removes a portion of the labor component" of the expense, thus saving money for customers, Johnson said.

For example, a customer who installs his own phone pays only a $6 order processing charge, whereas it would cost an additional $9 if a company employe had to put in the phone.

However, only Bell customers whose homes aleady are equipped with modular, or plug in, wiring may install the phones. The company estimates about 55 per cent of its customers have modular outlets.

THE COMPANY is in the process of converting old wiring to modular outlets, manager Sharon James said. As tenants move out of apartments, the wiring is converted, which eventually will allow all customers to use the pickup service.

Three smaller Illinois Bell retail stores opened earlier this summer within existing business offices, such as the one at 1325 N. Jones Rd., Hoffman Estates. These outlets serve only customers in the local communities, however, while the 3,000 square foot Woodfield store serves all Northwest suburbs.

Other Illinois Bell business offices are being converted to include retail areas, a company spokesman said. About 39 such stores will be open by Jan. 1, 1978, and 80 are to open by the end of next year.

IN ADDITION, Illinois Bell is "looking for additional mall locations" for retail business," Johnson said.

Not all of the 1,100 persons who visited the store by midafternoon Tuesday were enthusiastic about the Phone Center Store's Design Line telephones.

"It's kind of interesting," said Dan H. Danielson, an engineering technician from Vallejo, Calif. "But I can get along with a more utilitarian kind of thing."

TAMI ROSS of Streamwood tries out the Mickey Mouse phone on the opening day of Illinois Bell's retail outlet at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg. Mickey sells for a single payment of $110, or $30 down and 24 monthly payments of $3.65 each.

Humphrey gets first food since colon surgery

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Tuesday sipped broth and hot tea, his first food since undergoing surgery that revealed terminal cancer.

Intravenous feeding was being continued as a supplement for the 66-year-old former vice president. A tube from his nose to the stomach to keep the bowel area from collapsing was removed.

Dr. John Najarian, chief surgeon, said Humphrey was making an "excellent recovery" from the surgery performed last week. He said Humphrey will "gradually build up to regular food by Thursday."

The surgeon said Humphrey's weight is good — "he hasn't lost much weight in the hospital" — and his colostomy is "working very fine." Najarian expects Humphrey to go to his Waverly home by the end of the week to recuperate and return to the Senate after Labor Day.

An aide to Humphrey said, "He has read the newspapers and watched news on television and he knows what he's got, but he's an optimist and sees no reason why he can't bound back. He's going to battle the statistics."

A team of four surgeons operated on Humphrey to relieve partial blockage of the lower colon. They found an inoperable, malignant tumor in the pelvic area while performing the colostomy.

Carter under fire over Lance affair

mitted to go about his business.

The Lance affair centers on recent disclosures that Carter's budget director, in private life, obtained about $6 million in personal loans from New York and Chicago banks in which his own Georgia banks had opened interest-free accounts.

The comptroller of the currency told Carter last week there are no grounds for criminal prosecution arising from those loans or from other questionable banking practices, including hundreds of thousands of dollars in overdrafts run up by Lance's family in his own Georgia banks.

But the comptroller did say Lance's activities raised "unresolved questions . . . as to what constitutes acceptable banking practice."

Two Senate committees promptly announced they would conduct their own investigations of Lance's conduct and of banking ethics in general. But Carter said while those probes are proper, he believes all allegations concerning Lance have been investigated and found baseless.

"IT MIGHT have been advisable at the time the loans were made for Bert and others to have made those loans public," Carter said, "but that was not required" by banking regulations at the time.

Carter made it clear he considers investigation of all known charges to be "complete" — although congressional probes are in the offing — and, so far as he is concerned, Lance stands exonerated.

"I don't know of any allegation that has been made or proven that Bert Lance did anything illegal or even unethical" in the multimillion dollar loans he got while a professional banker or the overdrafts he and his family ran up at the banks he headed, the President said.

Carter also said the controversial new Panama Canal treaty is "advantageous" to U.S. interests. He said he will lead the effort to drum up public support for it in the face of fierce opposition from congressional conservatives.

On the Middle East, he said he has "no intention" of withholding military or economic support as a means of stopping Israel from establishing more Jewish settlements on occupied Arab territory. He said U.S. pressure would be confined to informing the Israelis it considers those settlements "illegal" and an obstacle to Middle East peace.

On other subjects, Carter said:

• It is not known what progress Sec. of State Cyrus Vance may have made so far in his efforts to improve relations with China without abandoning U.S. diplomatic and military links with the nationalist government on Taiwan. Vance was midway through a four-day visit to Peking.

• South Africa has informed the United States that, contrary to recent reports, "they do not have and do not intend to develop nuclear explosive devices for any purpose, either peaceful or military." He said the United States had told South Africa, "we appreciate this commitment."

Carter plans to clear up canal 'misconceptions'

by HELEN THOMAS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter said Tuesday he will personally lead a campaign to clear up "misconceptions" about the new Panama Canal agreement and win public and congressional approval.

Opponents of the agreement, giving Panama the canal in the year 2000, but leaving the United States involved in its defense, have started a nationwide campaign to block Senate ratification of the two treaties.

Carter acknowledged to a news conference the deal does not now have popular support, but he said he was confident "a good deal of misconceptions" will be cleared up when the text of the treaty is released in the next few days.

HE SAID HE intends to assume "a major responsibility of my own to give the American people the facts" about the treaty, and insisted the text answers most of the objections that have been raised — particularly that it would be a "giveaway."

Carter announced that the agreement provides for U.S. participation in the development of any sea level canal to be built in Panama, so no "possibly hostile nation will supplant us." He added such a canal is probably not needed immediately.

Later, White House press secretary Jody Powell said the sea level canal provision was written at U.S. insistence and "will relieve some concerns of some senators."

Carter said "I was not convinced a year ago" it was in the national interest to give up sovereignty over the Panama Canal, but after studying the drafts, "I'm convinced it's advantageous."

THE PRESIDENT also noted the treaty has been endorsed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, former President Gerald Ford and former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Carter said the present canal can handle neither large warships nor the biggest commercial freighters and oil tankers.

"It is obvious to me that over a period of time the Panama Canal . . . has become inadequate," Carter said. "Over a period of time, I think, the canal needs to be expanded.

"Whether we need (a new canal) at this time, I doubt. We may in the future.

"We want assurance we will be involved directly in the construction, and not have some possibly hostile nation supplant us," Carter said.

The President also brought Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd to dinner at the White House Tuesday night to discuss strategy for winning Senate approval.

The major question is whether to seek ratification before Congress ends its current session in October or wait until next year in hopes of strengthening its shaky support.

A NEW ROAD surface is rolled by John Smith of Itasca at the southwest corner of Palatine and Arlington Heights roads in Arlington Heights. Plans call for the triangle formed by Palatine, Arlington Heights and Rand roads to be widened to six lanes with synchronized traffic control signals. Arlington Heights Road, from Palatine Road to Dundee Road, will be widened to four lanes. The $8 million project is expected to be completed in about two years.

Wealthy Lee to take office in Maryland

Blair Lee III has two of the most famous family names in America and a bloodline of public service.

He becomes governor of corruption-scarred Maryland when incumbent Marvin Mandel is sentenced as the result of his conviction on mail fraud and racketeering charges.

Lee, 61, is patrician, tall, fair, well-to-do, Ivy League, a man born into a family of position with some of America's most famous heroes in the bloodline.

The contrast with Mandel could not be greater.

Mandel is short, dark and the product of a lower-middle-class city family and machine politics. He had to scratch his way to position and power.

BUT BOTH men gained office by political accident and both have suffered tragedies in their personal lives.

Mandel became speaker of the House of Delegates as the result of the corruption conviction of his predecessor and became governor when Spiro T. Agnew was elected to the Vice Presidency. He suffered through a messy divorce after an unhappy marriage.

Lee first was selected by Mandel as secretary of state and later appointed to the newly created position of lieutenant governor. He became acting governor two months ago after Mandel did not rapidly recover from what doctors believe was a small stroke. Four years ago one of his sons committed suicide.

Shortly after becoming acting governor, Lee said there was too much corruption in Maryland and he intended to put an end to it.

"As far as I am concerned, that is over," he said. "There's not going to be any more."

During the nearly eight years Lee has served in the state administration, Maryland has been plagued by an epidemic of trials and public revelations of corruption of public officials.

LEE SAID THE solution was to put an honest person in the governor's mansion. He already had decided to run for governor next year.

"I am still inclined to believe that the real answer lies more in the character and deportment . . . of the administration," he said.

By "administration," he added, "I mean the governor."

Liwe many people with famous ancestors, Lee sometimes seems reluctant or even embarrassed to discuss his heritage. But it is iluustrious and it is a motivating factor in Lee's desire to establish a name for himself.

Lee is the scion of several of America's most famous families, chiefly the Lees and the Blairs. He is related to Robert E. Lee, as well as Lincoln cabinet member Montgomery Blair; two signers of the Declaration of Independence, Richard Henry Lee and Francis "Lightfoot" Lee; a former governor of Virginia, Lighthorse Harry Lee; a U.S. president, Zachary Taylor; and Maryland's first elected senator, for whom he was named.

His father, E. Brooke Lee, who spent part of his childhood in the famous Blair House across the street from the White House, served as Maryland's secretary of state, comptroller and speaker of the House.

HE ALSO WAS a major factor in the development of Montgomery County, one of Washington's suburban counties and today one of the nation's most affluent areas.

Blair Lee III was educated at Princeton and studied law for two years before joining the Navy. He began his career as a journalist, editing a weekly newspaper.

In 1949 the younger Lee served as president of the Maryland Press Association, and in 1954 he began his political career in the House of Delegates.

Since then he has lost only one political race — a bid for the U.S. Senate in 1962 — and his reputation as an honest lawmaker and moderate Democrat has been maintained.

But Lee's life has not always been easy.

In 1973 his 27-year-old second son, Pierre Boal Lee, committed suicide by jumping off San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge.

Lee suffered a deep loss and considered dropping out of public life.

"How much longer can I take it?" he was quoted at the time as saying. And he added a year later after a series of scandals were disclosed, "I want the hell out."

Mandel career plagued by personal life

Marvin Mandel clawed his way out of a lower-middle-class Jewish section of Baltimore to become a powerful governor with an iron-fisted grip on state politics. But like the most ancient of leaders he was brought down by his problems with a woman.

The 57-year-old governor succeeded Spiro T. Agnew when he was elected vice president. He has been governor of Maryland longer than any man in 40 years. After being selected by the legislature to succeed Agnew, Mandel twice won re-election to four-year terms by landslides. He has been the dominant force in Maryland politics since becoming governor.

The most national attention Mandel received until his first corruption trial last fall was when he abruptly moved out of the governor's mansion to divorce his wife and marry the blonde socialite he had ben seeing secretly for several years.

HIS WIFE REMAINED in the mansion for several months and Mandel lived in a hotel until a private divorce agreement was reached. It required Mandel to provide his ex-wife with hundreds of thousands of dollars. The governor's salary was only $25,000 a year.

Mandel said during his trial "my financial problems began with my separation."

"I turned all the property over to my wife except my personal trophies, clothes and some stock certificates."

The government charged that he used his office for personal gain, for the money he needed for his divorce, and that he took money and favors in return for helping his friends obtain favorable legislative action on a bill beneficial to a race track they secretly owned. Some of the money that financed his divorce was funneled through a Roman Catholic religious order, the Pallottine Fathers.

BEFORE THE federal charges of mail fraud and racketeering even went to the jury, Mandel's lawyer conceded that he was "a ruined man." His two sensational trials — the first ending last December in a mistrial — revealed the intimate details of Mandel's messy personal life and his almost desperate efforts to avoid publicizing it.

His oldest friend and closest adviser is codefendant Irvin Kovens, a furniture company owner and former owner of race tracks. His wealth is estimated by the government to be in excess of $8 million and he was the primary fundraiser for Mandel, as well as for Spiro Agnew and many other Maryland politicians.

Kovens bought Mandel suits so he could "look like a governor."

Another codefendant, W. Dale Hess, was Mandel's roommate in Annapolis during their days in the legislature together. It was Hess who served as a frontman for some of Mandel's investments.

When Mandel's ex-wife, Barbara, insisted on a lump sum of $200,000, Kovens put up $155,000 in tax-free bonds.

"I knew that it was financially impossible for me to do," Mandel said. He produced a note that shows he owes Kovens $155,000 plus six per cent interest over a 10-year period starting in 1979.

ON THE EVE of the state primary in September 1974, his ex-wife threatened to sue unless he paid $40,000 he owed to her. He went to Hess and Hess arranged for the Pallotines to provide Mandel with $42,000.

"I had to make a payment. I had no choice," Mandel said on the witness stand. "There was no bank I could go to at that time I had no assets. I had given all of them away."

Barbara also insisted on a $100,000 life insurance policy, which Mandel took out with the insurance company operated by some of his codefendants.

The Pallottines helped out again in 1975 when Mandel's second wife received a $12,000 loan. Mandel has repaid about $7,000.

Mandel grew up in a section of Baltimore close to the Pimlico race track where he sold newspapers after school. He said during his trial that his interst in race tracks stemmed from his early association with the Pimlico track.

His family was never wealthy. His father was a cloth cutter and one of the founders of the Baltimore local of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union.

The family mortgaged their house so Mandel could be the first member of the family to go to college.

Maryland Gov. Mandel guilty on bribery counts cretly for several years before deciding to divorce his first wife.

"GO ON, Marvin, go on," shouted one spectator, while Mandel clinched his familiar pipe and smiled bitterly. "You're going to jail, Mandel. You're going to jail."

Arnold Weiner, Mandel's attorney, said the governor "was disappointed. He's determined to press on with the review of the case. He will continue to hang in."

But he noted, "The governor is still recovering from the stroke he suffered in April. The strain wears heavily on him."

Mandel denied he took bribes although he did concede accepting gifts from his friends including expensive business suits, jewelry for his family and vacations.

The biggest item was from Kovens — $155,000 in tax free bonds, which were used in the settlement with Mandel's first wife. Mandel said the money was a loan which he planned to repay. The government said it was a bribe.

MANDEL INSISTED another $42,000 that was funneled through several businessmen from a Catholic missionary order — the Pallottine Fathers — was a loan and said another $12,000 he received from the Pallottines also was a loan to pay for his second wife's legal expenses in seeking child support from her first husband.

But not all of the government allegations involved the divorce settlement.

Mandel said he received $15,000 from a firm that leases buildings to the federal government for back legal fees. Prosecutors valued his interest at a "conservative $140,000" and said it was a bribe.

Mandel paid $150 for a share of a $316,000 land deal on Maryland's eastern shore, saying he wanted a retirement place. Prosecutors placed a $45,000 value on his investment and called it a bribe.

STILL, IT was Mandel himself who made it clear in his own testimony that he considered his divorce to be the real cause of his problems.

"My financial problems began with my separation," he testified. "I turned all the property over to my wife except my personal trophies, clothes and some stock certificates."

On the eve of the state primary in 1974, he said, his wife threatened to sue unless he paid $40,000 he owed her, and that led to Hess arranging the largest loan from the Pallottines.

"I had no choice," Mandel testified. "There was no bank I could go to at that time. I had no assets. I had given them all away."

Fatal stroke hits Sebastian Cabot

SEBASTIAN CABOT

VICTORIA, British Columbia (UPI) — Actor Sebastian Cabot, 59, died early Tuesday after suffering a stroke.

Cabot, a long-time resident of the Victoria area, was born in London and came to the United States in 1955 with his wife, a son and one daughter. His second daughter was born after the move.

Cabot is well known for his television roles, which include the butler in "Family Affair," as well as "Checkmate" and appearances on "Stump the Stars."

HIS MAJOR MOVIES included "Kismet," in 1955 and "Time Machine" in 1960.

The veteran actor's wife, Kathleen, said Cabot suffered an apparent stroke at their Deep Cove home and was rushed to a hospital where he died. He had suffered an earlier stroke in July of 1974 and was hospitalized for three weeks.

In addition to his wife, Cabot is survived by his three children, Annette, Christopher and Yvonne.

Cabot, a 280-pound gourmet, was known for his courtly manners as well as his girth.

IN ADDITION to his three-acre estate in Canada he maintained a residence in Hollywood.

He once told an interviewer, "We have to strike this abominable rumor that I make my home in Canada. I am a resident alien there."

The bearded actor played feature roles in "The Three Musketeers," "Checkmate," "Family Affair," "Stump the Stars," and "Ghost Story," TV series.

In "Family Affair," he played "French," tutor, butler and cook to three youngsters and Brian Keith as the uncle. The role reflected a real-life episode when he worked as a chauffeur and general factotem for British actor Frank Pettingwell.

IT WAS THEN he became acquainted with the theater and with the help of experienced friends, talked his way into a repertory company.

Cabot was born in London, England, July 16, 1918. He left school at 14 to take a job as a garage helper. The job lasted six months — until Cabot drove into the garage doors.

He went to work as a cook and within a year, side benefits to the position provided him with extra pounds, which were to increase throughout his life.

He said later, "I like to think of myself as a rather dashing figure, like Falstaff. I've weighed 280 pounds since I was about 20 years old, and I like it."

Cabot entertained troops in World War II and when he returned following the war he was signed by BBC radio as an expert dialectician.

During the next few years he interrupted his BBC assignments with film and stage roles. His first stage appearance was "A Bell For Adano," in 1945. He also appeared in the first run of "Crime and Punishment," which starred Peter Ustinov and John Gielguo.

Bill requiring crib death report signed

A bill that would require uniform reporting of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, or "crib death," throughout Illinois was signed Tuesday by Gov. James R. Thompson.

The bill, sponsored by State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, will require autopsies and the reporting of their results within 72 hours of crib death.

Mrs. Macdonald said the law will help prevent false accusations of child abuse and will aid in research into the cause of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

Mrs. Macdonald has served as vice chairwoman of a special commission which for the past several years has studied Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

Mrs. Macdonald Tuesday hailed the governor's action on the measure and at the same time praised The Herald and reporter Eleanor Rives for her February 1974 story on Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

"The commission used the Paddock Publications story because we felt it was so good and we appreciate the public information that has been given through Paddock Publications because this is what we're trying to do, inform the public," Mrs. Macdonald said.

"Our aim: To fear God, tell the truth and make money"
H.C. PADDOCK, 1852 - 1935

News for elderly good and bad

A good new program for senior citizens and a threat to an older one made news in the Northwest suburbs last week.

The good news was the announcement by the Northwest Opportunity Center that it will make available a free or low-cost hot lunch at North School in Arlington Heights.

The center officials said 50 meals a day would be available weekdays starting Sept. 14. Persons over 60 will be eligible. They will be asked to pay what they can afford for their meal.

The program will help many lonely oldsters who might otherwise skimp on food. It deserves support.

Also last week, the owner of one of two taxi companies in Arlington Heights said he may drop out of the village's program of subsidized taxi fares for senior citizens because he is losing money.

Chuck Kolls, head of Arlington Best Cab Co., said the $1.50 paid to the taxi company through the subsidized program barely covers his maintenance and gas costs.

Robert Birks, owner of the other cab company in Arlington Heights, Arlington City Cab, has said he will remain in the program even though he is also losing money on the subsidies.

Birks' statement that he believes every businessman should participate in civic affairs shows a commendable spirit. He should be applauded for his dedication to the program.

At the same time, village officials should carefully consider whether Kolls' concern that the subsidies are too low is justified. While cab company officials might justly be expected to make some contribution to such a program, they shouldn't find themselves unfairly pinched because of their participation in a service.

Kolls says the average taxi ride in the village runs up a $3 meter charge and that the $1.50 subsidy is too low.

Village officials should adjust the subsidy if necessary in order to ensure fairness to the cab companies and continuation of a needed service for senior citizens.

No more movie houses?

Say it isn't so, Arthur. We're referring to the report that movie theaters will be obsolete by 1985, a finding attributed to the distinguished Arthur D. Little research and consulting firm. The prediction is that Americans will no longer go out to the movies but bring the movies home on big screens served by video cassettes, discs, or cable TV.

This was shattering news for a local man on the very day he was to meet his family for a double feature of Alfred Hitchcock classics, "The Lady Vanishes" and "The 39 Steps." His own pre-video youth had been full of family expeditions to such movies before anyone knew they were classics. Then the movies, confronted by TV's competition, had grown shrill, solemn, ugly, and pretentious — but still with enough shining exceptions to make "going to the movies" a bit of a treat when the children did not happen to be occupied with homework or preferred company. Now . . . in 1985 . . . a mere eight years . . . the end of the line for the movie theater? It is (sob!) too much.

Theater owners, not unexpectedly, say Arthur D. Little is wrong. That is some comfort. But how objective are they? Certainly they alone cannot erase the handwriting on the celluloid. The best hope lies in the moviemakers. If their films put together the emotions people like to feel as part of an audience — laughter! joy! heartbreak! suspense! — then the movie house will not go the way of the village smithy. And tomorrow's family will still have a cool place to catch "The Lady Vanishes" on a hot summer night. — The Christian Science Monitor

"Well, did you enjoy your trip to California?"

Lad's failure at banking frees him from dull days

Jim Bishop

Sometimes there is more good in a big failure than a small success.

My father got a summer job for me. I was 14; too young for acne. He escorted me to Wall Street. We took a birdcage elevator to the second floor of 16 William Street. There were two glass doors. Both stated: "Lehman Bros. Bankers."

Inside, an old policeman with curling mustaches plodded around a receptionist desk. I was introduced to John Courtney. "A good lad, I hope," he said. "Well, lieutenant, I'll watch over him."

He did. "You will get $12 a week every Friday," he said. "From nine until five, or whatever, you will sit behind that desk inside the enclosure. Whenever a distinguished visitor gets off the elevator to see one of the partners, you will get to your feet. They are all distinguished.

"Take the man's card to the proper partner and lay it on his desk blotter. No speeches. They don't want to hear anything from you. Just put it on the desk and stand back. Have you got that straight?"

THE PARTNERS were to be addressed, from the oldest to the youngest, as "Mr. Philip," "Mr. Arthur," "Mr. Herbert," "Mr. Allan," "Mr. Harold," and "Mr. Robert." They were august gentlemen who riffled papers on their desks in the big private office and chewed on expensive cigars.

From where I sat, I could see glass cages of men. There was the cashier; the bond cage; the stock cage. I removed a rubber band from my desk drawer. And bent a few paper clips. My best efforts were against the bitter bald head of Mr. Ludy in the bond cage.

I could snap a paper clip and be studying my fingernails before it landed. And yet I was caught. The office manager, Mr. Bertsche, was tall and forbidding. He said I was ruining a career before it started.

FROM NOW ON I would have two additional duties. One would be to walk to the Bank of New York and Trust Company and cash a payroll check. The sum was $3,145.50. "And count it," he said severely, "before you bring it back."

The other duty was to return a check to the Corn Exchange Bank at 2:45. "I will give it to you every day, and you, Mr. Bishop, will run downstairs and across the street and return it before the bank closes."

Counting new bills is difficult. A teller felt sorry for me. "Just take down the first number of the top bill in the pack, and the number of the final one. Tally each package."

It didn't occur to me to take a dime. Nor did it occur to me to marvel at the daily check. It was made out to "Lehman Brothers" in the amount of $1,000,000. The bankers got a fresh one every morning, to be used in case the stock market collapsed, and returned it every afternoon unused.

AT AGE 14, LIFE is dull. I got to know Justice Irving Lehman, older brother of Philip, who was a member of the New York State Supreme Court. He was ugly enough to be spread around four or five brothers. He wore rubbers and carried an umbrella on sunny days.

He was never to be stopped. Neither were the members of Goldman, Sachs, Lazard Freres and Kuhn Loeb. A boy can get to know names and faces swiftly.

In August my father came to see how I was doing. He had hopes. Officer Courtney told him about the paper clips. Herbert Lehman saw my dad and said his son would never be a banker. "You son is too much of a dreamer, lieutenant. But let him stay here awhile. The discipline will do him good."

THERE WAS A soft day in late August. It seemed scented, even in the concrete canyons. At 2:45 I stuffed the check for a million in my navy blue jacket. I wandered up William St. to Wall. Then left to Broadway. I smelled the air, held my face to the sun, and studied the ancient tombstones. I dreamed about Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr and the Astors who had come from Germany and bought all this land.

At 4 I was back. At the reception desk stood Courtney, Mr. Bertsch and Herbert Lehman. "What did you do with that check?" Bertsche shouted. "Corn Exchange is going to charge a full day's interest on it."

"I didn't lose it," I said, and removed it from my pocket. "You're fired, kid!" Bertsch shouted. "Fired," Courtney said sanctimoniously. Lehman shook his head and left.

That was my first failure. There were others. If I had been a good boy, in 20 years I would have been a bond clerk in a glass cage . . .

'Right on for school discipline'

Right on, Harlow R. Mills, Arlington Heights, right on! I would like to repeat all of your views and opinions as the first part of my comments with regard to "higher tax bills." My children attend the Christian Liberty School in Prospect Heights, which has announced no tuition increase again, when everyone is well aware of the "cost of living" increases we have all experienced in every phase of our lives.

Because of the truly dedicated, non union teachers at Christian Liberty School, every child after only one year in kindergarten and first grade, is well on the way in basic math and capable of reading textbooks fluently.

Sound moral habits, respect toward fellow students, adults and community property are second nature to the students.

Walk through their corridors or premises at any time, and never do you hear the cannibalistic sounds and antics that prevail at every school in the Chicago area. The parents take great pride in enforcing the dress code. We have the pleasure of not being restricted to uniforms.

Taxpaying parents of students attending Chicago area schools, get up off your duffs and demand good results in conditions and everything you continue to complain about and want to avoid. Especially you "Arlington Heighters," according to Harlow R. Mills' letter, stop worrying about the future minority residents "lousing" up your domain, your children are doing a very good job of it all by themselves.

Answer man seeks public pulse

Commentary
by ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Answer Man has been traveling recently, with his ear to the ground and his finger on the public pulse. He's here today to give us a report on the heartbeat of the grassroots.

Question: Sir, we understand you have been going out to talk to the people about their concerns. Did you visit Clinton and Yazoo City with the president?

Answer Man: Well, not exactly. I have some difficulty understanding Jody Powell at those briefings, so I must confess I went to Clinton, Miss., when Mr. Carter went to Clinton, Mass.

Question: And when he went to Yazoo, Miss.?

Answer Man: I went to Kalamazoo, Mich. Seemed only logical.

Question: Only if you spend enough time around the White House. But tell us, what were the people talking about?

Answer Man: The death penalty. The people in both towns are worried about crime and believe only capital punishment will reduce it.

Question: But experts say the death penalty doesn't deter crime.

Answer Man: Perhaps not for first offenders. But you certainly cut down on repeaters.

Question: How about energy? Are the people convinced yet that there is a real problem?

Answer Man: Not yet, but I found a number of people who are showing increased interest. Several people I met planned to drive to Texas on their vacations to see if the oil supplies really are dwindling.

Question: What's the general attitude toward OPEC?

Answer Man: There's quite a dispute about that. Half a dozen people I talked to say there's nothing better to spray on lawns to control billbugs. Another group claims it makes cats and dogs spit up in the house and want it banned...

Question: There also was a pretty hot controversy over Mr. Carter's water project "hit list." Did you find any interest in that?

Answer Man: Not by a dam site. Except for one fellow who argued that if the Almighty hadn't wanted dams built, He would not have created the Corps of Engineers.

Question: How about the great questions of war and peace? Are the people concerned about the negotiations between the Arabs and Israelis or afraid that Cyprus will blow up again with Makarios gone?

Answer Man: Didn't hear much about them. But lots of folks wanted to know if I thought there would be violence in the Yankee dugout before the World Series. They also are really worried about the negotiations between Charlie's Angels and Farah Fawcett-Majors.

Question: Was there much talk about former President Nixon's television appearances? How did the people rate him after the Frost interviews?

Answer Man: Funnier than Johnny Carson, but not as convincing as re-runs of "To Tell The Truth."

Question: Well, tell us, what one thing did the Americans you talked to seem to yearn for most in the summer of 1977?

Answer Man: Cooler weather.

letters to the editor

Letters must be signed, and no letters will be published anonymously. Letters are subject to condensation, and a maximum length of 300 words is recommended. Direct your mail to the Fence post, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

I object very much to the choice of photos used to cover your story of Aug. 10, "1 Killed, 4 hurt by gunman." A picture of the young man killed in the shooting appears on the front page. It is very obvious to all that this man is dead from the wounds received. I couldn't help but feel sick at the thought of young children seeing this awful picture. I'm sure Mr. Meisenheimer's family is overcome with grief. They certainly do not need to see a piciture of their loved one, stripped of his dignity, dead on the floor in their morning paper.

Isn't there anyone at The Herald who objected to this? I can't believe that any of you would want one of your loved ones photographed in this manner. I believe a little soul searching on the feelings of death and dying is in order on the part of your news editor.

Gail M. Palmier
Arlington Heights

(Letters complaining about the Meisenheimer coverage also were received from Bruce B. Zager of Elk Grove Village; Rae Roche and Gerald Richardson of Arlington Heights; Ronald and Joan Hazen of Mount Prospect; Mrs. Tom Harrison, Becky Robinson and Cindy Siwik, all of Prospect Heights, and from several other residents who did not include addresses with their signatures.)

Criticizes letters

In response to two recent letters to the editor by Tim Morris, I would like to add my views.

His letters say much to do about nothing and he seems to miss the basic point.

We have a movie theater in Rolling Meadows whose manager has been approached by various persons in the past eleven years that I have lived here with little result. Now, as a community of concerned citizens and adults, we have a beginning to the answer to the problem.

Do you know that the theater is within walking distance for the young?

Do you also know that even when good shows are shown, pictures of "coming attractions" hang around the walls?

Do you know that the manager of this theater also has his hands in the drive-in on 53?

Are you aware that parents drop their children off, little caring what they see for a few hours of freedom?

The basic fact we are dealing with is — there is a difference between adults and children.

Do you follow the movie listings? Why are the other theaters surviving with long ones on G and PG movies?

Try taking a few youngsters to a G movie and observe their reactions. You may learn more from them than any book on the subject matter.

Why do so many adults take pills or something else for depression? Why do they want to hide from reality?

Would you like to be a young child in today's world?

Mrs. Diane Peterson
Rolling Meadows

Restitution enough?

The parents of the vandals are going to make restitution for the damage done by vandals at the Buffalo Grove Golf Course. Fine! Will this bring the duck back to life?

How much time did they spend teaching their children reverence for life, all life?

50 years' doubts follow Sacco, Vanzetti

by HAROLD BLUMENFELD

NEW YORK — NEA — April 15, 1920, a paymaster and a guard were shot in front of a shoe factory in South Braintree, Mass. At that time it didn't seem to be more than a routine "stickup," but it developed into a cause celebre that attracted world-wide attention.

A few weeks later, on May 5, Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were arrested in a streetcar at nearby Brockton. Each man carried a pistol and they were arraigned on a charge of murder.

I was 15 years old at the time and might have cheered the arrest of those "damn commies." That is, if newspapers had provided coverage of their arrest. The nation was undergoing a "witch hunt" conducted by U.S. Att. Gen. A. Mitchell Palmer, mostly centered in New York and Massachusetts. At that time it seemed anyone who raised a voice of dissent was a "Red" who wanted to overthrow our government.

SACCO AND VANZETTI had emigrated from Italy in 1908 to seek a better life in America. Sacco was born in 1891 on Italy's Adriatic coast, the third of 17 children. He worked hard and established himself as a specialist shoemaker, married Rosina Sambelli in 1912 and lived the normal life of a factory worker with his wife and son.

Vanzetti, who was 31 when arrested, came from a fairly well-to-do Piedmont family, had washed dishes, worked as an assistant cook, janitor and street sweeper. He settled into a job of street fish peddler. He loved the freedom and open air and made many friends.

The men were not Communists. They were anarchists who opposed all forms of governments, including the new Soviet postrevolution Communist rulers.

More than 50 eyewitnesses offered contradictory descriptions of the two men who had done the shooting at the factory, but Sacco and Vanzetti were tried by Judge Webster Thayer at Dedham, May 31, 1921. The two Italian immigrants had claimed they carried the pistols to protect themselves since their lives had been threatened. It was believed that the damning evidence that convinced the jury of their guilt was the ballistic test of the bullets found in the bodies of the holdup victims.

Defense attorneys requested a new trial with a new judge, maintaining Judge Webster Thayer was prejudiced. Slightly more than 5 feet tall, a movie casting director could have picked Thayer as a typical elderly Yankee. Friends admitted he talked freely out of court and at his private club had made unfavorable comments about the two defendants. And Prosecutor Frederick G. Katzmann was accused of dragging "red herrings" into court as evidence to confuse the jury.

ON JULY 14, 1921 the jury found them guilty of murder. And it became apparent to many people around the world that there might have been a miscarriage of justice.

Persons from various fields of the arts, the academic world, the political and international scene, the radical left, the legal profession and the church provided an impressive Who's Who that tried to save Nicola and Bartolomeo from the electric chair:

Among them were: Jane Addams, Robert Benchley, Heywood Broun, William O. Douglas, Albert Einstein, Felix Frankfurter, John Galsworthy, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, Walter Lippman, Thomas Mann, H.L. Menken, Benito Mussolini, George Bernard Shaw and H.G. Wells.

Prominent attorneys skilled in criminal court practice came to help with the defense.

The Boston Common, legendary as a place where peoples of all political color could speak, was the scene for large protest mass meetings.

But perhaps the Sacco-Vanzetti episode had become more of an ideological tug-of-war than a criminal trial. Mounted police rode their horses to disperse the crowds and the speakers were arrested. Pickets in front of the Massachusetts State House also were arrested, some as many as two or three times a day. Young children carrying small American Flags paraded in front of the state prision in Boston.

APPEAL MOTIONS and court hearings dragged the case out, meaning seven long years in jail for Sacco and Vanzetti. Until they were brought to Charlestown State Prision in Boston to pay the death penalty, they remained in the quiet confines of the small jail in Dedham.

World-wide pressure increased after Sacco and Vanzetti were sentenced to die. Luigia Vanzetti, a frightened and plain woman, came to the United States to plead for clemency for her brother. Demonstrations in Boston grew larger and more heated. President Calvin Coolidge, who was vacationing in South Dakota, refused to intercede.

On June 30, 1927, Gov. Alvan Fuller granted a 30-day delay of execution to permit a new advisory committee, commonly known as the "Lowell Committee," to meet.

Although the defense had offered new and important evidence, proved the prosecution had produced no finger prints and claimed one of the guns had been tampered with, the "Lowell committee" recommended that the execution not be delayed any longer.

And at 11:23 p.m. on August 23, 1927, Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti died in the electric chair.

In the summer of 1927 I was a budding journalist who was assigned to work on the Sacco-Vanzetti story during the last weeks. The anti-radical hysteria had lessened. I had read and learned many things about this trial. And in recent years I have asked myself whether they did kill two men in South Braintree on a quiet spring afternoon. I came to a personal conclusion that Sacco might have done it in a moment of burning rage and hatred. But not Vanzetti who had the heart of a poet and felt compassion for all men and women.

Today I know there are many who still believe they were guilty. My own personal doubts are washed away as I read Bartolomeo Vanzetti's last speech to the court:

"If it had not been for these things I might have lived out my life talking at street corners to scorning men. I might have died, unmarked, unknown, a failure.

"Now we are not a failure. This is our career and our triumph. Never in our full life could we hope to do such work for tolerance, for justice, for man's understanding of man, as now we do by accident.

"Our words, our lives, our pains — nothing! The taking of our lives — lives of a good shoemaker and a poor fish peddler — all! That moment belongs to us — that agony is our triumph."

The lighter side

The final disaster film? This has the ingredients

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Before the current cycle of disaster movies ends, which mercifully should be sometime soon, I'd like to see them do one about a movie disaster.

I'll even suggest a title and a scenario. Call it "Turkey." It's about a film company that becomes trapped in a $20 million bomb.

The main characters are an actor, an actress, a producer, a director, a screenwriter and a publicity director. As in all disaster movies, the dramatic impact comes from the ironic twists in the way each reacts to the catastrophe.

LANCELOT MISTLEFOOT, actor. Macho type. In a crisis, he's the one you expect to manifest qualities of courage and leadership. But when Mistlefoot learns the film he's in is a bomb, he panics.

In one emotional scene, he is shown pleading with his agent, Bennie Flackhorn, to get him out. But he is tied down by an unbreakable contract, and there's no way to escape.

Renoir Flicknagle, director. Moody. Dissolute. You wouldn't think to look at him that he had an ounce of fortitude in his body.

Yet when he becomes aware he has a bomb on his hands, he keeps his head and makes a valiant, albeit futile, effort to save the picture by dubbing in a laugh track.

Burnside Templehair, producer. Career in eclipse and desperately needing a hit to prove he's not all washed up. Has a reputation for pragmatism.

BUT CONFRONTED with evidence that his comeback vehicle is a bomb, he refuses to face reality. Starts wildly pouring more money into the film, and takes the whole studio down with him.

Theda Grappling, actress. Pampered tyrant of the dressing room. Never even so much as peels her own grapes.

Nevertheless, when Flicknagle brings her word of the bomb, she rises to the occasion. Volunteers to make a rigorous personal appearance tour to plug the film.

Scenes of Miss Grappling stoutheartedly pressing from hotel suite to hotel suite with only a maid, hairdresser and press agent in attendance are Academy Award material.

Algernon Upbuckle, screenwriter. Famous novelist. Looks down nose at Hollywood writers but accepts vast sum of money for one-shot picture deal.

When Upbuckle realizes he is partly to blame for the bomb, he is filled with remorse. Ultimately comes to admire and respect the studio hacks who are called in to try to repair the script.

Jo Bangles, publicity director. Only hired because she is having affair with the producers. Yet she is real heroine of the disaster.

Comes through with emergency advertising gimmick that salvages something at the box office.

DR. HAYWARD FOY leaves courtroom after his trial was postponed Tuesday. Foy is charged with illicitly dispensing prescription drugs.

Nader group asks ban on DBCP-type products

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader's health researchers asked the government Tuesday for an immediate ban on scores of products containing DBCP, a pesticide linked to sterility among factory workers exposed to it.

The Environmental Protection Agency, to which the petition was directed, said it is studying the problem but so far "we don't have any evidence of ill effects among people who have applied the chemical, or perhaps farm workers who may have handled it or people who may have eaten food with residues of it."

Sidney Wolfe, head of Nader's Health Research Group, said, however, EPA should issue an emergency order halting sale and distribution of products containing the substance "because of human evidence of sterility and animal evidence of carcinogenicity."

DBCP IS A soil fumigant used to kill worms and other pests in the ground. Two of its manufacturers, Dow Chemical Co., and Shell Oil Co., have stopped making it.

The Nader group singled out 56 consumer products named by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration which contain DBCP and which should be banned, it said.

The EPA said it has registered 72 products containing DBCP and 102 products are registered with various states, although there could be some state-federal duplication.

Wolfe said the ban is needed "to stop the risk to thousands of chemical workers, farm workers and others whose jobs bring them in contact with this fumigant which causes sterility and is also a carcinogen and a mutagen."

An EPA spokesman said there is still "some question" as to whether the pesticide is responsible for the sterility since in at least two of the plants which manufactured it other pesticides were produced as well. But the spokesman said DBCP is still "the No. 1 suspect."

The EPA also said the chemical has been on its suspect hazard list as something that possibly causes cancer and interferes in reproduction.

Foy trial delayed again to Sept. 26

The trial of Dr. Hayward W. Foy, an Arlington Heights physician charged with illicitly dispensing prescription drugs, has been postponed until Sept. 26 in Cook County Circuit Court.

Judge Edward C. Hofert Tuesday ordered the case continued to allow Foy's attorneys and assistant state's attorneys time to interview prospective witnesses.

Foy's attorneys have requested a jury trial, and jury selection is to begin Sept. 26 in the Daley Center courtroom in Chicago.

Foy, 77, who has practiced medicine for 48 years, including 15 years in Arlington Heights, was indicted in May 1976 after he allegedly sold drugs to agents of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation. Foy's medical license was suspended April 20 following an investigation.

9,700 GM workers idled due to strike

General Motors Tuesday idled 9,700 workers in Detroit and Saginaw and warned of more layoffs because of widening parts shortages because of a week-old strike at a key Indiana parts plant. GM said it was idling 4,300 workers on the final assembly line at the Cadillac plant in Detroit along with 4,800 workers at the adjacent Fisher Body Fleetwood plant that produces auto bodies for the Cadillac plant. Another 600 workers at the Saginaw steering gear division also were being laid off. Negotiators for GM and the United Auto Workers union continued lengthy meetings in Detroit trying to resolve the local contract dispute that put 12,700 Delco-Remy employes on the picket line in Anderson, Ind., since Aug. 15.

Amana refrigerators adjusted

The Consumer Product Safety Commission in separate actions has announced voluntary corrective action for approximately 240,000 side-by-side refrigerator-freezers and the recall of a high chair that may collapse. Amana Refrigeration Inc., of Amana, Iowa, in cooperation with the regulatory agency, announced it would modify a hinge wire assembly on the refrigerator doors. When worn, the wires could cause severe electrical shocks to a person grabbing both door handles, the company said. The units affected by the recall were manufactured between February 1969 and September 1974. In another action, the commission and Century Products Inc., announced the firm voluntarily would recall the nonfolding 747 Command High Chair, which the commission staff said could collapse if a weld breaks.

Credit card system hearings

Hearings on the U.S. credit card industry and electronic funds transfer systems are scheduled to begin in September before the U.S. House of Representatives Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs. The Washington, D.C. hearings are scheduled Sept. 20, 22, 23, 26, 27, 29 and 30. The Credit Card Electronic Banking Consumer Protection Bill was introduced by U.S. Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-11, subcommittee chairman. Annunzio said the bill was designed to stop consumer abuse by credit card issuers, and to provide security for EFT systems. Annunzio said credit cards "were initially offered as a consumer bonanza, and now are becoming the most expensive piece of plastic in history."

GAO backs region airline reform

The federal government should subsidize regional airlines on the basis of what it costs to provide service to remote areas, not what the airlines say they need, the General Accounting Office told Congress Tuesday. The report backed up the Civil Aeronautics Board's recommendations for reforming the 35-year-old system of subsidizing regional airlines for service to small cities. GAO, the Congressional watchdog agency, said revisions could best be accomplished through new legislation. The CAB spends about $68 million a year to subdidize seven regional airlines carrying 38 million passengers.

GE offers brighter lamp

General Electric Co., has announced a new 35-watt fluorescent lamp tube that gives 97 per cent as much light as the conventional 35-watt tube, with a resulting 14 per cent power saving. The secret of the new tube is a new phosphor coating on the inside, combining a narrower band blue ray and a brighter yellow ray.

Touche Ross, Lasser to merge

Two of the country's largest accounting firms, Touche Ross & Co., and J. K. Lasser & Co., have announced they have merged under the Touche Ross name. Observers said the merger would create the third largest accounting firm in the country. Since the accounting profession forbids its members to incorporate, all accounting firms are partnerships and are not required to publish figures on the volume of their business. Russell E. Palmer is managing partner of the merged firm.

Hoyne reports assets increase

Hoyne Savings and Loan Assn. which has Wheeling and Chicago offices, reports total assets of $133,314,181 for the year ended July 31. Earl C. Weber, president and board chairman, said the yearly increase in assets amounts to more than $9 million. Savings and investment account deposits at the 90-year-old institution are reported at $114,739,984, a $7.8 million increase during the past year.

United tells record earnings

UAL Inc., Elk Grove Township, reported its July net earnings from airline operations wtre $30.9 million, highest of any month in company history and an increase of 45 per cent from July 1976. The comany also reported that United's operations for the first seven months of 1977 were $26.2 million compared with a loss of $4.5 million for the corresponding period a year ago.

General Motors to increase '78 cars an average $405

DETROIT (UPI) — Auto industry pricing leader General Motors said Tuesday its 1978-model cars will carry sticker prices up an average $405 above current models.

The increase included a 5.7 per cent increase, or $387, on the average equipped car and an average $18 jump in destination charges.

The price hike was the first major increase since last fall when the 1977 models were introduced.

The No. 1 automaker, which accounts for more than 50 per cent of all domestic auto sales, was the first of the four U.S. auto companies to set firm prices on new models.

Earlier this summer, GM indicated price increases could be as high as 6 per cent.

AMERICAN MOTORS has set tentative prices $301 to $400 above current models, while Chrysler and Ford said their prices will not rise by more than 6 per cent. The AMC $301 boost applies to the four-and six-cylinder versions of the subcompact Gremlin custom series, which will be priced at $3,549.

GM said in a statement, the "increases are modest in relation to those of other consumer products. In the past five years, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics whose indices recognize quality changes, new-car prices have increased only 28 per cent while consumer prices generally have increased 45 per cent."

The price hike raised the sticker on the nation's most popular car — the full-sized Chevrolet — from $4,900.65 for a four-door Impala sedan to $5,282.55. The base model of the same car at the end of the 1973-model year before automakers started a never-ending upward price spiral was $3,751.90.

GM said the price increase on the base models of its 1978 models, excluding options generally ordered by customers, averaged 4.6 per cent, or $242.

GM DEALERS already are selling 1978 models with the exception of the new mid-sized models — Chevrolet Malibu and Monte Carlo; Pontiac LeMans and Grand Prix; Buick Century and Century Regal; and Oldsmobile Cutlass. Their price tags won't be announced until the cars go on sale in early October.

The mid-sized models have been shrunk one foot and are about 800 pounds lighter for 1978 as part of the automaker's downsizing program to help it meet new fuel economy standards.

The new model year is the first in which each company must build a fleet of cars that averages 18 miles per gallon. The federal fuel economy requirement rises to 27.5 mpg in 1985.

The initial pricing move by GM comes after several months of complaints by automotive executives about rising labor and material costs. The price of steel — the major ingredient in any car — increased 6 per cent in June.

Industry executives said they do not expect higher prices to slow their near-record sales pace. Combined with imports, executives predicted total sales this year will be close to the record 11.4 million new cars sold in 1973.

Imported cars, which have been grabbing nearly one of every five new car sales so far this year, also have had to contend with higher prices as the value of foreign currencies, particularly the German Mark and Japanese Yen, increase in relation to the U.S. Dollar.

Since the 1977s were introduced, Volkswagen jumped prices 8.3 per cent while the No. 1 import — Toyota — increased nearly 6 per cent.

Market rally loses steam, dips 1 in moderate trade

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks lost ground Tuesday when a blue-chip bargain-hunting rally ran out of steam in late afternoon. Trading was moderately active.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up about four points at one time, faltered toward the end and lost 1.73 points to 865.56. It gained 3.81 points Monday.

The market was restrained by government reports that July durable goods orders fell 4.4 per cent and that orders for nondefense durable goods plunged 8.7 per cent.

The New York Stock Exchange common stock index lost .07 to 53.42 and the average price of a common share decreased four cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, dipped .17 to 97.62. Declines topped advances, 712 to 696, among the 1,887 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big board volume totaled 20,290,000 shares, up from the 17,870,000 traded Monday. Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 23,630,020 shares, compared with 20,662,250 Monday.

CANCER DETECTION HEART ATTACK PREVENTION

A resting electrocardiogram is taken at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. to detect any heart abnormalities.

Of every six people who get cancer today, two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die, one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. (According to American Cancer Society publication '76 Cancer Facts and Figures.)

The health examination services available at the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection include all cancer detection procedures recommended by the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division.

Heart Disease accounts for nearly half of all deaths each year. Unlike most Cancer, Heart Attack can be postponed through reducing one's risk factors such as diet, exercise, blood pressure, smoking, etc. Dr. Morris Collen, a well-known specialist in preventive medicine, was quoted in the January, 1977 Issue of FORTUNE "if one has a checkup every year or two at age thirty-five and thereafter, directed at postponable diseases, the mortality rate from those diseases after seven years is approximately 50 percent of what it would have been without exams."

The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a preventive health screening examination designed for three purposes:

1. To establish a health profile for each individual to be used as a baseline for future care.
2. To analyze an individual's risk factors for heart disease and cancer and statistically forecast probable life expectancy and suggest ways it might actually be increased by reducing the risk factors found.
3. Screen for treatable disease. Early detection and prompt treatment increase the probability of a favorable outcome.

This meticulous 3 hour, low cost examination includes a computerized medical history, health risk analysis, physical examination, proctosigmoidoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, over 30 chemical determinations on blood and urine, vision, audiometry, spirometry, glaucoma test, body measurements. Women also receive a pap smear and instruction in breast self-examination. Exercise stress test, 24 hour holter monitor, and echocardiography are available as options.

Give yourself the best protection available today against cancer and heart disease by calling your physician or the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. located at 1000 Grand Canyon Parkway, Hoffman Estates, Illinois (Near Woodfield Mall.) Master Charge accepted. Telephone (312) 885-1360.

Welfare reforms to help middle-income workers

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

A funny thing happened to the welfare reform program on the way to Congress. It turned into a welfare plan for the middle class. A good part of the program's total cost comes from adding some 8.3 million middle-income families to the "welfare" rolls.

Under Jimmy Carter's proposal, a family of four making up to perhaps $14,200 will be classified as "working poor and in need of relief." That makes them eligible for a special income supplement called the "earned income credit." Larger families would be eligible for this payment at income levels up to $20,000.

To get an idea of what those incomes mean in real life, here's a sampling of average wages in private industry, as of March 1977, collected by the Bureau of Labor Statistics:

ON AN ENTRY, level, nationwide, chemists make $12,872 and accountants, $12,155. The middle-range wage for computer operators is $10,529; draftsmen, $12,833; and job analysts in personnel departments, $13,572. Senior secretaries get $13,407.

In the Washington, D.C. area, forklift operators average $12,542; shipping clerks $9,984; and maintenance painters, $12,834.

Under the Carter Plan, all the workers listed above (in families of four) would be eligible for the earned income credit, to supplement their wages. In the earnings range listed, the annual tax breaks would run from $85 for the chemists to $500 for the shipping clerks.

According to the Internal Revenue Service, some 71 per cent of all taxpayers reported incomes of $15,000 and less in 1975 (the latest year for which figures are available).

NOT ALL those people will be eligible for the "working poor" tax break, since it goes only to taxpayers making a home for a child under 19 (or a full-time student).

The Treasury claims that only 17 per cent of taxpayers would be able to claim the new, improved earned-income tax credit. But in fact the figure could go much higher. If you owe federal income taxes, the earned-income credit reduces your tax bill. If your income is so low that you owe no taxes, the credit is received as a cash payment.

The total tax subsidies paid to families making more than $9,500 would come to an estimated $1.6 billion. Families making more than $12,500 would collect $484 million.

At present, the earned-income tax credit is worth 10 per cent of your income up to $4,000 (for a maximum credit of $400). After that, the credit gradually decreases, and phases out entirely when your income passes $8,000. One of the original purposes of this credit was to give a special tax break to low-income people who worked for a living rather than going on welfare.

THE CARTER proposal keeps the 10 per cent tax credit for incomes up to $4,000. But it adds a new 5 per cent credit for a certain amount of income above $4,000. That 5 per cent will apply to all your wages between $4,000 and whatever level your federal income-tax obligation starts, under the tax reform plan to be proposed by Carter this fall.

Present thinking is to have income taxes start at earnings of $8,160 for a family of four filing joint returns. Families making that amount, therefore, would collect a cash payment from the government of $400 (10 per cent of the first $4,000) plus $208 (5 per cent of the next $4,160), for a total of $608.

Over that amount, the tax credit would be reduced by $1 for every $10 of income, phasing out for a family of four at around $14,200, and larger families at a maximum of $20,000.

As voters and taxpayers, middle-income families are now presented with an interesting choice. Many of you have spoken angrily about federal handouts for low-income people. Now you're being classified as low-income (even though you aren't) and offered a handout of your own. Will you rise up in wrath and order your congressman to turn it down?

(C) 1977 The Washington Post. Co.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking.

Low tar MERIT delivers flavor of higher tar cigarettes– 'Enriched Flavor'™ breakthrough confirmed.

For years, you couldn't get real tobacco flavor without high tar. As a result, many smokers wanting to switch to a low tar cigarette couldn't.

Couldn't—until MERIT.

Until 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. A breakthrough in tobacco science that resulted in a way to boost natural tobacco flavor without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

This breakthrough has made MERIT one of the most popular new cigarettes in twenty years. More importantly, over 75% of all MERIT smokers are former high tar smokers.

It's clear: low tar MERIT is delivering the kind of flavor that can satisfy high tar smokers, the toughest "taste" critics of low tar smoking.

REGULAR & MENTHOL

Taste-Test Proof

MERIT and MERIT 100's were packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And taste-tested against a number of higher tar cigarettes.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of both MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested.

Cigarettes having up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. And you can taste it.

Careful play insures game

Once in a while you will find yourself in a 4-3 trump fit for a game contract. This isn't a fate worse than death. Sometimes trumps break 3-3 (36 per cent of the time according to the mathematicians). Sometimes careful play can handle the expected 4-2 break.

Four spades is the only game that can be made against good defense. Even that would lose against a jack of diamonds lead, but West makes his normal lead of the three of hearts. East plays the jack and now declarer can bring home the bacon if he makes a very unusual play. He must duck that heart.

This play leaves the defense in a hopeless position. In fact, if East leads a second heart declarer will make five odd. He will ruff in dummy, cash the king and queen of trumps and lead a club. Eventually, that ace of clubs will be the only other trick for the defense, since South will be able to discard two diamonds on dummy's long clubs to wind up with four clubs, four trumps, two red aces and a heart ruff in dummy.

Ask Andy

An owl may look wise but he's fooling

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Tonja Byrd, 11, of Charlotte, N.C., for her question:

CAN AN OWL TURN HIS HEAD COMPLETELY AROUND?

Owls have the reputation of being very wise. This feeling has been gained, no doubt, because most of the time an owl sits quietly and says nothing. Probably because of this, too, the ancient Greeks thought he was sacred. While the farmer now certainly considers the owl to be one of his best friends — because he eats rats and mice — most experts agree that ravens, crows and geese are all smarter.

A total of 525 different kinds of owls have been identified by scientists. They range all the way from the great gray owl, who measures 30 in. tall and has a wingspread of 60 in., down to the elf owl who is less than 6 in. tall.

Among the owl's most outstanding features are his great senses of seeing and hearing. Unlike most birds who have one eye on each side of their heads the owl has a forward-facing placement of the eyes, much like a human's. The eyes, however, are not too mobile in their sockets, and it is necessary for the owl to turn his head to change his field of vision.

In being able to turn his head in order to hear or see, the owl has a great advantage over most other birds: he can turn his head all the way around to face in any direction. He has an ability, actually, to turn his head a full 180 degrees.

There's an old backwoods spoof that says you can walk around an owl sitting on a treetop and that he will keep turning his head as he watches you until it is twisted off. This isn't true, although it almost seems possible. The head can make only one complete turn.

The owl's sharp eyes work especially well at night, and they work closely with his very sharp ears. Sound-deadening filaments at the tips of the wings and contour features give the owl almost noiseless flight. A mouse walking along a path in the field can be both heard and seen by the owl as he swoops in silently for the catch.

Owls swallow their prey whole. Because they have strong stomach juices, they are able to remove all the nutrients from the mice or rats they catch. Indigestible bones, fur and feathers are then formed into neat pellets and are later coughed up by the owl. Since owls usually bring their prey back to a favorite perch to eat, they then sit quietly while the food is being digested and the remains regurgitated. And while waiting, they look wise.

Andy sends the book 200 Illustrated Science Experiments to David MacDonald, 10, of St. Catharines, Ont., Canada, for his question:

WHO INVENTED THE SUBMARINE?

A Dutch scientist named Cornelius van Drebbel came up with the first workable submarine in 1620. It was a wooden rowboat that was covered with waterproof hides. Then, during the century that followed, many other undersea craft were designed and constructed in various parts of Europe.

During the Revolutionary War, a student at Yale College named David Bushnell designed a one-man submarine powered by a hand-cranked propeller. He called the craft the Turtle. In 1776 the Turtle made an attempt to sink a British warship in New York Harbor but it failed. This was the first known attack by a submarine.

In 1800, American inventor Robert Fulton built a copper-covered submarine called the Nautilus.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to boys and girls 7 to 17.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

We've just settled into our new home in Rolling Meadows, and we're anxious to talk with as many experienced Commercial Raters as we can. We know a good Commercial Rater is a busy person with plenty to do on the job...so we'd like to see you during your lunch hour.

Along with a great lunch (on us of course), we'll try and fill you in on the advantages and opportunities that come with a career at Allstate. Just give us a call and let us know when your lunch hour is and what day would be most convenient. We'll fit our schedule around you. You might even mention this ad to your co-workers...we're always happy to buy lunch for fellow insurance professionals interested in exploring new career opportunities. And of course our meeting will be confidential.

So circle a day on your calendar now and be sure and give us a call. Remember, the lunch is on Allstate's Midwest Commercial Region!

Legal Notice

DOCKET 77-17

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that at the hour of 9:00 p.m., Wednesday, September 7, 1977, at the Municipal Building, 901 Wellington Avenue, Elk Grove Village, Illinois, the Plan Commission of the Village acting as a Zoning Commission will conduct a public hearing on the petition of Bianco Development Company, Owners of Record, of the North portion of the property and Elk Grove Development Company, Owners of Record of the South portion of the property, commonly referred to as the Regency Square/Perrie Grove Site. The petitioners are requesting a major change to the original site plan identified as Exhibit "B" to an Annexation Agreement adopted by Resolution No. 56-70 on June 28, 1970, under the provisions of the Elk Grove Village Zoning Ordinance No. 842, Section 4.25, CHANGES IN THE PLANNED DEVELOPMENT, Paragraph A., Major Changes, for the proposed development of Phase II, consisting of 348 dwelling units, under Section 5.36, SPECIAL USE IN THE A-2 DISTRICT, thereby reducing the original density by approximately 124 dwelling units. Said property is located north of Landmeier Road and the east and west sides of Perrie Drive in Elk Grove Village and legally described as follows:

Parcel No. 1, Parcel No. 3, and Parcel No. 4 as shown on Exhibit "B" of the Annexation Agreement adopted by Resolution No. 56-70, and located in Section 27, Township 41 North, Range 11, East of the Third Principal Meridian in Cook County, Illinois. (Full legal descriptions of each parcel are available at the Village Clerk's Office, 901 Wellington Avenue, Elk Grove Village, Illinois.)

All persons interested are invited to attend and will be given the opportunity to be heard.

The legal riddle of Sacco and Vanzetti

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts Tuesday observed Sacco and Vanzetti Day, but there was little public ceremony to mark an event which sparked 50 years of debate and agitation over one of the most controversial legal cases in history.

Fifty years ago thousands of demonstrators, including some of the foremost literary figures of the time, stood in the streets of Boston in a vigil which ended with the electrocution of two Italian immigrants who never wavered in denying their innocence of murder charges against them.

About a hundred demonstrators held a candlelight vigil outside the State House Monday night, returning to the State House again Tuesday to deliver a letter demanding "full exoneration" of Sacco and Vanzetti. Tuesday night about 400 persons were expected to attend a waterfront presentation of a play about Nicola Sacco and Bartolomed Vanzetti.

IN HARTFORD, Conn., Mayor George Athanson ordered the flag at City Hall flown at half staff in memory of the two men, whose trial raised questions about American justice which are unanswered to this day.

Outside of those quiet observances the day passed unmarked.

Sacco and Vanzetti, died Aug. 23, 1927 amid worldwide controversy over what many believed to be blatant violations of their rights during a month-long murder-armed robbery trial and seven years of appeals which reached the U.S. Supreme Court.

A proclamation issued by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis last month declared Sacco and Vanzetti were denied a fair trial because of what they were: foreigners who were self-proclaimed anarchists advocating overthrow of the government.

NO STATE observances were scheduled. A spokesman for the governor said the lack of any official ceremonies was in keeping with the tenor of Dukakis' proclamation.

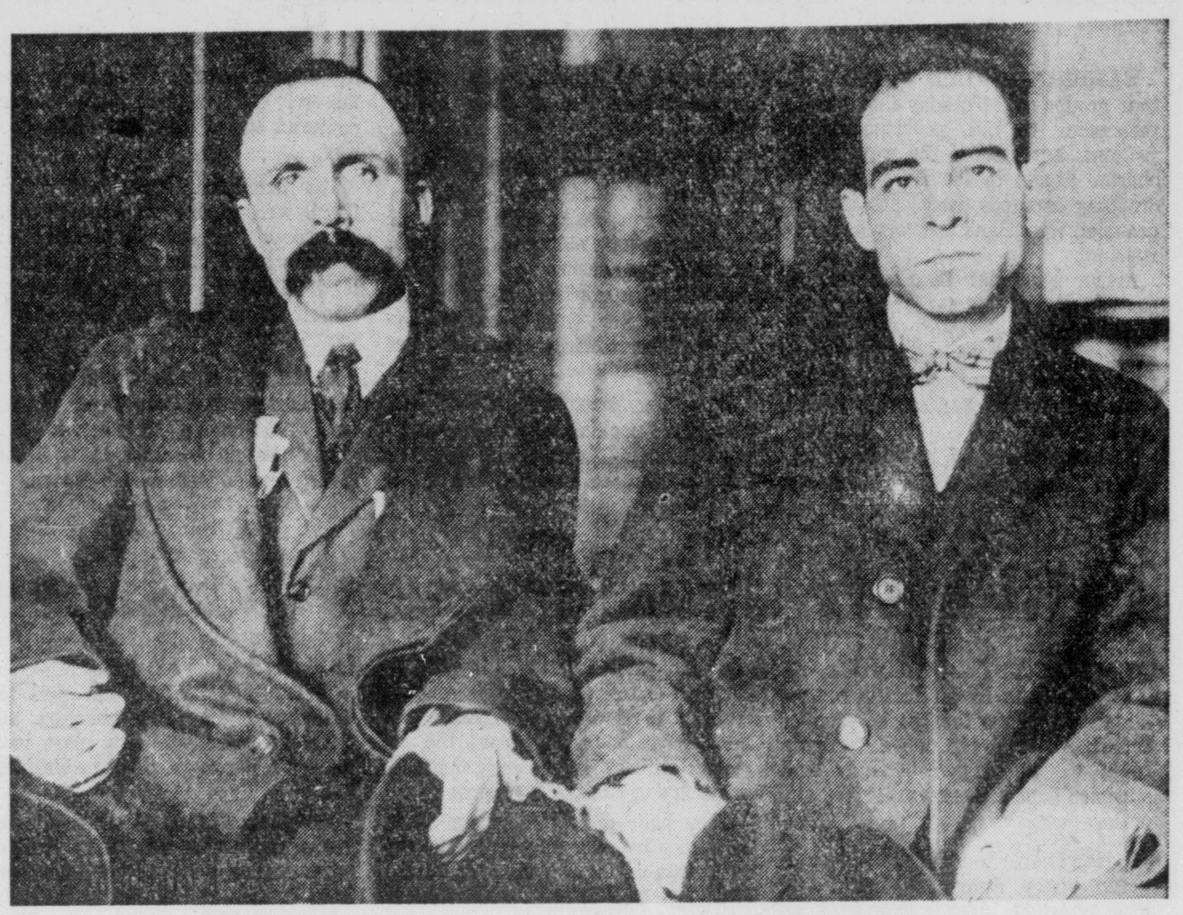
The governor merely called on residents to take time to reflect on "our susceptibility to prejudice, our intolerance of unorthodox ideas and our failure to defend the rights of persons who are looked upon as strangers in our midst."

The proclamation did not deal with the issue of the guilt or innocence of Sacco and Vanzetti, but stated merely they were not granted a fair trial.

Despite the millions of words and thousands of demonstrators marshaled in defense of the two men, Sacco and Vanzetti pleaded — in broken English — their innocence most eloquently.

"There is nothing in earth or in heavens which can make the true untrue or the untrue true," Vanzetti said in a letter to United Press from his death cell in 1927.

"The judges of the Supreme Court of the United States can uphold at their heart content both (presiding Judge Webster) Thayer and the Massachusetts Justice; we will remain innocent."



BARTOLOMEO VANZETTI, left, and Nicola Sacco (shown during trial) were executed in August 1927 for the murder of two persons during a $15,000 holdup. Their innocence or guilt is still debated.

U.S. may uphold minority admissions plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Carter administration is working on a Supreme Court brief that is widely expected to support government "affirmative action" plans against charges of "reverse discrimination."

However, a spokesman insisted Tuesday the Justice Depart. has not decided what position it will take.

There is growing speculation that department lawyers will intervene as a "friend of the court" and support the challenged admissions policy of the University of California Medical School at Davis.

State courts ruled the school practiced "reverse discrimination" in rejecting the application of a white student, Allen Bakke, while accepting minority applicants with lower grades.

Spokesman John Wilson said although a draft brief is under study, the Justice Dept. has not yet decided what position it will take.

THE DRAFT was drawn up by the civil rights division after a check with the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare and other federal agencies that might be affected.

A Chicago newspaper Monday reported the decision already has been made to support the minorities and women, and the haggling is over details. It said Att. Gen. Griffin Bell declared during an Aug. 5 visit to Chicago, "We have decided to file."

Although the case concerns admissions, It may affect government "quotas," "goals" and "affirmative action" programs in hiring minority groups and women.

Solicitor Gen. Wade McCree Jr. hopes to reach a decision and clear it with Bell — and no doubt the White House too — in time to file a brief by Oct. 1, Wilson said, if one is filed at all.

RAKKE CLAIMED he was denied entrance to the medical school because it had reserved 16 out of 100 admissions for "disadvantaged applicants" — blacks, Spanish-speaking Americans and Asian-Americans.

While applicants admitted in regular competition had undergraduate grades averaging 3.49 out of a possible 4.0, the disadvantaged applicants averaged 2.88, Bakke said.

Bakke claimed his record would have won him admission if the 16 places had not been deliberately assigned on a racial basis to applicants with a lower grade average. Bakke won in state courts, and the university appealed to the Supreme Court.

President Carter strongly hinted last month he will defend the admissions policy in support of the minority groups, although doing so might "contravene the concept of merit selection."

"I hate to endorse the proposition of quotas," Carter said, although he added that if mistakes are made he wants to be sure "the mistake might be to end discrimination and not the other way around."

Socialite names husband as killer

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — Long-haired socialite Priscilla Davis, tears trickling down her cheeks and her voice breaking, stared directly at her estranged husband Tuesday and identified him as the "man in black" who shot her in the chest and murdered her lover and daughter.

"He shot me," Mrs. Davis sobbed. "I said 'I never loved anybody else. Can't we just sit down and talk?' "

For the better part of six hours Tuesday, Mrs. Davis, 35, slowly and painfully recounted her night of horror — Aug. 3, 1976 — at the Fort Worth mansion bought for her by her millionaire industrialist husband, T. Cullen Davis.

SHE WEPT through much of the testimony and became so unnerved while describing the death of her lover, Stan Farr, that court had to be adjourned.

Davis, being tried for capital murder in the death of his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn, sat calmly through his wife's version. Davis also is charged with the murder of Farr, 30, a former Texas Christian University basketball player, and the wounding of Mrs. Davis and a family friend, Gus Gavrel.

Shortly before the conclusion of the day's session, Dist. Atty. Tim Curry concluded his direct examination of Mrs. Davis, and Davis' chief attorney, Richard (Racehorse) Haynes, began his cross-examination.

The early cross-examination was tame, with Haynes focusing on the prosecution's attempts to ready its key witness for her ordeal.

"HOW MANY TIMES did you reenact the shooting?" Haynes asked.

"To be honest with you," Mrs. Davis said, "I don't remember."

Today's cross-examination promises to be more spectacular and one member of Haynes' staff said the defense may take five days to finish its questioning.

Mrs. Davis, dressed conservatively in a pale pink suit that contrasted to the revealing costumes she has become known for in her home town, appeared composed as she began her narrative under Curry's questioning.

But soon she was weeping and attorneys agreed to take periodic breaks for Mrs. Davis, who is still under a doctor's care, to compose herself.

SHE FIRST described seeing bloody fingerprints leading to the basement of her huge home and then told of her first encounter with the killer.

"I just passed the back staircase and was about at the end of the breakfast table," she said, "and all of a sudden Cullen stepped out.

"He was dressed all in black. And he had like a woman's wig. It was the type black people wear. His hands were hidden by a black garbage sack.

"He said 'hi.' "

Curry then asked, "What did he do?"

"He shot me," replied Mrs. Davis, her voice quavering.

Curry asked Mrs. Davis to point out the man she meant.

"He's sitting over there in a beige suit and blue shirt," Mrs. Davis said, pointing at Davis. She continued, saying Davis shot Farr and then she broke into hysterical sobs and court was recessed.

FOLLOWING THE break and a brief scolding from District Judge George Dowlen for volunteering to much information, Mrs. Davis recounted the moments following the shooting of Farr.

She said Davis came back to her side, grabbed her and began dragging her through the house.

"I said, 'Cullen, I love you. I never loved anybody else. Can't we just sit down and talk?'

"I said, 'Please, please don't move me, it hurts so much.' "

She said Davis then let her go and that after he left the house she hid in bushes outside the home. It was from her hideaway that she said she heard another gunshot and screams.

Bumbling guards blamed in Nazi's escape from jail

ROME (UPI) — Italy's defense chief Tuesday blamed bumbling guards and careless police officials for the escape of Nazi SS mass killer Herbert Kappler from a Roman hospital Aug. 15.

West Germany, breaking its silence over the strange affair that has strained relations between Bonn and Rome, said Tuesday it had nothing to do with Kappler's escape from the Celio military hospital, where Kappler was undergoing cancer treatments.

Italian Defense Minister Vito Lattanzio delivered a report to Senate investigators blaming the escape on the incompetence of the supposedly "elite" guards assigned to Kappler's ward.

THE 70-YEAR-OLD former SS colonel was serving a life sentence for the massacre of 355 Italians in a wartime reprisal for the partisan slaying of 32 German troops in Nazi-occupied Rome.

His wife Anneliese, 53, smuggled him out of the hospital in a large suitcase and spirited him to West Germany, where the law bans his extradition.

The statement by the West German government, which for years had pleaded with Italy to release Kappler on humanitarian grounds, pointedly did not express regrets over his escape.

Instead, it expressed "respect and sympathy" for Kappler's victims and their relatives and said that neither "the Federal Government nor any of its agencies were involved in the preparation or execution of Kappler's flight."

Lattanzio told the senators that a police captain had reduced the number of Kappler's guards because of a manpower problem without consulting higher officials.

HE SAID ONE of the two policemen assigned to Kappler's ward also had a record of "slackness when on guard duty."

Making matters worse, Mrs. Kappler was allowed to drive the rental car in which Kappler escaped into the hospital courtyard, he said.

To top it off, hospital officials waited a full hour to inform police after a nurse discoverd that the blanketed form under Kappler's bed was really a bundle of pillows.

"Indecision, uncertain behavior and a complete lack of the spirit of initiative" aided Kappler's escape, Lattanzio said.

Experts watch wave as possible first hurricane

MIAMI (UPI) — A tropical wave moving into the northwest Caribbean southeast of Cuba showed signs Tuesday of more development and threatened Jamaica with flash floods, the National Hurricane Center said.

"The wave has not strengthened since Monday, but conditions are favorable for gradual development during the next 24 hours as it continues westward about 15 miles per hour," forecasters said.

If the wave develops into a tropical depression, and then into a tropical storm with winds of 39 m.p.h. or more, it would be named Anita, the first such storm of the hurricane season this year.

The center said the wave was causing extensive thundershowers extending several hundred miles to the south of eastern Cuba with the heaviest rain drenching Jamaica.

CMDR. JON UITHOL stands on bridge of Coast Guard cutter Dauntless, beside painted "kills" representing marijuana seizures. The large leaf is symbolic of the bust of the freighter Night Train, which yielded 54 tons of the weed, the largest seizure in North America.

Coast Guard cutter puts check on pot smugglers

MIAMI (UPI) — Dusk is setting on the Bahamas as the Coast Guard Cutter Dauntless closes in on a 185-foot mystery freighter and its $32 million cargo of marijuana.

The smugglers at first attempt to flee, but turn to ram the Dauntless. Cmdr. Jon Uithol pulls his ship back, then resumes the chase. After six machine gun rounds and three shots from a three-inch cannon, the "Night Train" stops dead in the water.

Uithol and the Dauntless claimed the largest drug prize ever seized in North America — 54 tons of marijuana.

The Dauntless is one of four Coast Guard cutters in the 7th District assigned the task of enforcing U.S. marine laws — from drugs to oil spills to fishing violations.

Of late, patrolling the Caribben sea lanes for drugs increasingly has become a full-time job.

"When we go out, we go hunting," Uithol said. "And when you go hunting, you have to go where the game is."

The "game" — marijuana-laden vessels — usually follow normal shipping lanes from Colombia or Jamaica to the United States, said Uithol, who has served in Vietnam and aboard an ice breaker in the Artic.

The Grand Rapids, Mich., native, described by colleagues as having the instinct of a bloodhound on a backwoods trail, spread out a chart. He pointed to the Yucatan Channel between Cuba and Mexico, the Windward Passage between Cuba and Haiti and the Mona Passage between the Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico.

"Those are the key routes and we can easily block off any of them," Uithol said. "Nothing we've gone after has gotten away yet."

Israel OKs landings at Tel Aviv

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two U.S. tour groups said Tuesday that Israel, responding to U.S. government objections, has cleared the way for 27 charter flights to the Holy Land by dropping demands the planes land in occupied West Bank territory near Jerusalem.

Arthur Frommer Charters Inc. of New York and Meier International Study League of Dallas said Israeli aviation officials have granted their flights special permission to land this year at Ben Gurion Airport near Tel Aviv.

Representatives of a third group, Tower Travel of New York, said they have asked the Israeli government for similar treatment of 19 other charter flights.

THE SURPRISE ACTION came only days after an Israeli official in Washington predicted little chance of his government yielding to State Dept. pressure and easing a requirement that U.S. charters from all states except Washington, Oregon and California use Atarot Airport on the West Bank.

Many travel officials viewed the new Israel position as a first step toward removing thousands of would-be tourists from the crossfire in a growing dispute between Washington and Tel Aviv over claims to areas Israel captured during the 1967 Middle East war.

The Frommer, Meier and Tower flights were among 125 proposed charters recently rejected by U.S. officials because Israel planned to make them land at Atarot, a former Jordanian airport in territory occupied during the 1967 war.

IN REJECTING the initial plans for the charters, the State Dept. and the Civil Aeronautics Board said they would have no objections to the flights if they instead went to Ben Gurion.

U.S. officials said last week they considered the Israeli demand that charters land at Atarot an attempt to win backdoor recognition of captured territory without a Middle East peace settlement.

Sources close to the change in Israeli policy said the move was prompted by economic rather than by political considerations.

FROMMER AND Pan American World Airways said the new ruling gives the go-ahead for 14 charters carrying up to 2,590 travelers from New York, Boston, Philadelphia or Washington. A 15th flight planned for early 1978 was not covered by the Israeli permit.

Meier and Capitol International Airways said they will go ahead with at least 12 flights carrying up to 2,196 passengers from Little Rock, Denver, Chicago, Philadelphia, Atlanta, San Antonio, Dallas, Memphis and Savannah, Ga. They said advertising delays may force cancellation of a 13th flight from Hartford, Conn., and a flight from Washington may be added.

Tower and World Airways said they want permission for landings at Ben Gurion for 19 flights carrying up to 4,370 passengers from New York.

A request by El Al for 78 charter flights carrying 12,480 passengers from Boston, Washington and New York to Atarot was rejected outright by the board July 25. Neither the Israeli embassy nor the airline could say immediately whether El Al will try to send those flights to Ben Gurion.

British air strike strands thousands

LONDON (UPI) — An eight-day-old work slowdown by air traffic control assistants forced the cancellation of British Airways' supersonic Concorde flight to Washington Tuesday and stranded thousands of travelers in airports.

Vowing never to return to Britain, a dozen angry Americans boarded a Pan American flight to New York after spending 18 hours at Heathrow airport waiting in vain for a British Airways flight to leave.

At Gatwick airport, shouts of "we want a plane" came from a departure lounge where 290 New York-bound passengers approached the 24-hour mark in their departure delay.

EMPLOYMENT Secretary Albert Booth met with leaders of the 850-member assistants' union Tuesday night in an attempt to have the union drop plans for a four-day strike. The assistants voted overwhelmingly Monday to begin the strike at midnight (6 p.m. CDT) Thursday.

The assistants are seeking the wage increase arrived at in an agreement with the Civil Aviation Authority in 1975 and calling for pay hikes ranging from 13 to 17 per cent. The government says it cannot grant the increase without jeopardizing its anti-inflation wage restraint program.

They have disrupted normal flight schedules by manually processing information on flight plans and aircraft locations. The information, normally processed by computers, is used by air traffic controllers to guide planes in British air space.

The slowdown has forced the cancellations of hundreds of flights and caused increasingly long delays in departures and arrivals at Heathrow, Gatwick and Luton — southern England's three main airports.

BRITISH AIRWAYS canceled the Concorde flight to Washington and gave the passengers first class seats aboard a jumbo jet flight to Washington.

"It's better to use the air traffic slot for a jumbo that can carry 400 passengers than for Concorde which can only carry 100," a British Airways spokesman said.

Flight delays were compounded as pilots used up their legal working hours while waiting on runways for takeoff clearance. The pilots are required for air safety reasons to take a rest after completing their legal working hours.

Yanks take 1st in East with win over Sox

Veeck keeps N.Y. walking and talking

by BOB GALLAS

White Sox President Bill Veeck is a man of simple passions — a can of beer, a seat at the ball game, and, of course, a little Yankee-hating whenever he can get it.

And Veeck got plenty of it Tuesday.

What started out as a humorous incident over the Yankees' use of walkie-talkies to set defensive alignments turned out to be a full-scale comedy with the Yanks threatening at one point to go home if they could not use their transistorized toys.

IT ALL STARTED Monday when the Yanks stationed Gene Michael in the press box, complete with walkie-talkie, so he could communicate with the Yankee dugout. It was the same procedure New York used during last fall's World Series. Michael was booted out by Chicago Sun-Times reporter Jerome Holtzman, the senior writer who is in charge of press box access. From there, Michael tried to sit in the upper deck behind home plate, where he had to contend with Andy the Clown, who tried to sit on Michael's lap, and Sox announcer Harry Caray, who came down to sit with Michael and calm the surly crowd.

Michael, former Yankee shortstop, works directly for Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, who hatched the walkie-talkie idea in the first place. Michael finally retreated to the safety of the New York dugout.

That ended our saga until Tuesday morning when Veeck, buoyed by a night of plotting against his "favorite" opponents, tried to put a stop to the electronic strategy.

"I just don't like the idea of introducing electronics into the game," said the Sox boss, who was clearly enjoying the howls of protest from the New Yorkers. "I'm afraid this is just one step, with more and more to follow. I want to put a stop to it at the beginning."

VEECK APPEALED to American League President Lee MacPhail, who sent word on the league wire that New York had his permission, but that the Sox could station a man to monitor the transmissions so that the walkie-talkies couldn't be used for sign stealing.

Veeck also appealed directly to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who attended Tuesday night's contest by sheer coincidence.

"He was very non-committal, I guess you'd say," said Veeck. "He wouldn't say anything."

Veeck dispatched his first and third base coaches onto the field with radio headsets to open the game. "Maybe we'll send the Drummer Boy up there later on to jam their (Yankee) frequency. With that drum of his, he can jam anything," Veeck mused.

YANKEE BROADCASTER Bill White and Phil Rizzuto were having their own problems with Michael and "monitor" Dan Cohen from the Sox front office, jammed into the tiny booth.

"Will you guys please be quiet. I'm trying to do a job here," White was heard to bellow during the game.

Steinbrenner also failed to see Veeck's humor.

"That's typical of Veeck," Steinbrenner told a New York writer. "Veeck never comes to the meetings but he's trying to run the league."

"They said at one point today that they'd refuse to play without the walkie-talkies," said Veeck. "I said fine. We win by forfeit 9-0 and I sue you for the money we lose by issuing refunds to those who'd bought tickets to see the game."

Only one thing spoiled Veeck's day of Yankee hating, the Sox lost 8-3.

Somehow, Yankee hating is always more fun when you win.

by BOB GALLAS

The New York Yankees, who are big on electronic gadgetry, pulled the plug on the White Sox Tuesday night to take over first place in the American League Eastern Division.

After winning a battle earlier in the day that permitted them to use walkie-talkies to set their players defensively, the Yanks promptly went out and showed they didn't need all those transistors anyway, combining good defense with power and speed to win 8-3.

The loss dropped the Sox into third place in the A.L. West, two games behind front-running Kansas City and a game behind the Minnesota Twins.

MICKEY RIVERS paced the Yakees with a 5-for-5 outing and three runs batted in and Greig Nettles capped a four-run New York eighth inning with a three-run homer that sank the South Side Hitmen, who stranded nine runners on base.

"They (New York) made the good plays," said Sox manager Bob Lemon. "There were a couple of instances that could have gone either way, but they came up with the good play on defense. We hit some line drives, but unfortunately right at them."

Lemon may be excused if he understated the Sox effort because he has a vested interest. The truth is, the Yankee supremacy seemed obvious, if not painfully so, to the 39,340 who braved the rain and chilling wind to witness the Sox defeat.

New York made the good plays, the running catches in the outfield, made the stop on balls hit up the middle, in short, made the big play.

WHILE THE White Sox fans had to settle to watch leftfielder Ralph Garr let a fan take a foul ball away from him or wait for Garr to dig the ball out of his glove while a run scored all the way from second on a base hit to shallow left, Yankee rooters could point to first baseman Chris Chambliss' diving stop of a ground ball, then a throw from the sitting position to nail the runner at first.

Wilbur Wood started the game for the Sox, who made noises as if they might win in spite of themselves for a while. Wood had problems in the third when he walked three and gave up three runs, but the Sox came back with two in the third and one more in the fourth to tie the score.

Wood gave the Yankees another run in the seventh and departed in favor of Lerrin LaGrow in the eighth with a run in and a man on with nobody out. An error by second baseman Jorge Orta put another Yankee on before Nettles woke up LaGrow with his home run.

"Outside of the third inning where I got the ball up and gave up the walks, the ball was actually moving very well," said Wood, whose record evened up at 6-6. "They hit some good pitches."

MIKE TORREZ, who is unsigned, put his record at 15-10 for the Yankees. The talk around his locker turned to money.

"I think I'll put my services on the open market since I'm not signed this late in the season," said Torrez, who came to New York from Oakland in a trade earlier this season. "We're miles apart when it comes to money."

Rivers, perhaps stunned by his five straight singles, wasn't even as hospitable as Torrez in the friendly confines of the Yankee clubhouse.

"I have nothing to say. I don't feel like talking" said Rivers.

SOX SHORTS: The pitching line for the two-game series in Baltimore tonight and Thursday night will be Steve Stone (13-8) vs. Ross Grimsley (12-6) tonight and Ken Kravec (7-6) vs. Rudy May (13-12) Thursday night . . . Pennant hopes scattered with loss to S.F.

Sutter returns but Cubs are already gone

by JEFF NORDLUND

The excitement of an unexpected piece of the pennant race continued to slip away from the Cubs Tuesday.

The cold wind that kept Cub fly balls in play and helped the San Francisco Giants to a 4-3 victory in 13 innings was a sign that fall is near and that the time for the Cubs to bow out of the race has come.

The evidence was clear. Even the Giants, the Cubs' favorite patsy this season, took advantage of three unearned runs and a winning run set up by two walks.

FOR EIGHT games this season prior to Tuesday the Giants were winless against the Cubs and a ripe target for shooting to the top of the standings. But this time the Cubs wouldn't let the Giants play the fall guy.

The only encouragement on the bleak day came from Bruce Sutter, who made his first appearance since Aug. 1. Sutter threw two-thirds of an inning to halt a Giant rally and fanned the final batter for the 25th straight time he has registered a strike-out in an appearance.

"My arm feels good," Sutter, who came off the 21-day disabled list Monday night, said afterward. "I didn't throw at all until this week, hoping the layoff would help my back and arm recover.

"Tomorrow is the key. If the arm feels good then, I'll be all right," he said.

THE THREE-WEEK absence from duty didn't dampen his appeal with the fans, who gave him a standing ovation just for getting up in the bull pen. He got another when he relieved Dave Roberts, who had just completed five innings of scoreless relief.

"I appreciate what the fans do for me. They don't put me on the spot. They get me psyched up instead. It felt pretty good," Sutter said.

After starter Ray Burris left in the fifth having surrendered three unearned runs, Roberts, Sutter and Willie Hernandez combined for seven scoreless innings of pitching.

The enviable streak came to an end when Paul Reuschel walked two hitters and yielded a run-producing single to light-hitting Tim Foli in the 13th.

HERMAN FRANKS, whose 45 years in baseball have taught him to take everything with relative calm, shrugged off the loss.

"We'll just have to play 'em all one at a time," he said. "What other approach can you take?"

"I thought Sutter threw pretty well today, but I didn't want to leave him in too long — his first time back.

"I had to pull Burris in the fifth because I wanted to strike out (Willie) McCovey. That's all. Burris threw pretty well, too."

THE EXCELLENT relief was wasted largely because of two errors, one by Steve Ontiveros and one by Ivan DeJesus, which were keys in the Giants' one-run third and two-run fourth.

The Cubs, who led earlier 2-0 on singles by Jerry Morales, Ontiveros, Manny Trillo and Burris in the second, tied things again in the fifth when Ontiveros drove in Morales with a single.

But from then on, the Cubs wasted opportunities and stranded runners on base in the ninth and 13th innings.

In the ninth with one out and men on first and third bases, Morales popped out in foul territory and Bobby Murcer followed with a groundout to first base to end the inning. In the 13th, pinch hitter Larry Biittner bounced out to end the game with two men on base.

MURCER WAS A victim of the wind more than anyone else. Three of his five flyouts could have been home runs on another day, including a shot he hit in the 13th with Morales at first base.

"I was trying for a home run there," he admitted. "I could've hit it if I had pulled it. But the ball got out over the plate a little too far and I couldn't hit it closer to the foul line."

Murcer ended the day 0-6 with four deep flyouts.

The loss ended the Cubs' homestand at a 5-7 mark.They open in Atlanta with Mike Krukow (8-10) pitching tonight and Bill Bonham (10-10) throwing Thursday.

Bill Buckner's nine-game hitting streak was ended Tuesday, and the Cubs gave Bobby Darwin an unconditional release to make room for Sutter on the roster.

Arlington ready as Legion Region begins

by DON FRISKE

Pitching is a strength and hitting is a worry, but something less visible could determine how the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team does this weekend.

Coach Lloyd Meyer called it a "quiet confidence" as he led his players through preparations for the Great Lakes Regional tournament, which opens today in Bellwood.

"We're going in with that attitude and it means a lot," Meyer said. "We know we're capable, but you still have to play the game."

ARLINGTON'S FIRST challenge will come at 4:30 this afternoon when West Allis, Wis., plays the defending regional champions. At last year's tourney in West Lafayette, Ind., Arlington beat Columbus, Ohio, to advance to the nationals.

Many of the players have been through tournament action before, which Meyer sees as a small advantage.

"But this is always a tough tournament. It's hard to say if the players are up right now because they've got college and school to think about." Meyer said. "If we start winning, though I would think these guys would get up."

To keep his team sharp during the 10-day rest between the state and regional tourneys, Meyer held three practices. He stressed bunting and fundamentals Tuesday, hitting Monday and pitching last Saturday.

EACH PITCHER on the staff threw six innings during a scrimmage-type game. But some of the Arlington players have been absent because of registration and orientation at various colleges. Meyer said they worked out on their own before reporting back with the rest of the team.

"Our pitching has got to carry us. There's no doubt about that," Meyer said. "Nobody hits our pitching too much. We just don't give up a lot of runs."

John Mertins, who didn't pitch at all in the state tournament, will start in the opening game for Arlington and Kevin McBride will pitch the second. Bob Huber, Dennis Drolet and Doug Harth are the other possible starters.

"Our top pitchers are all so equal I just think it's fair to spread the work around," Meyer said. "Mertins has always been a winner. He's pitched good for us and he won't beat himself. McBride just seems to win the bigger ball games."

TODD WALKER and Jim McDonald are available for relief work, along with those starters not being used on a given day.

Hitting has been a weakness for Arlington, but Meyer said it should improve.

"If we can stay in it long enough, our hitters will see better pitchers. Then they're not as overwhelmed as on the first day," he said.

For that reason, the first few games of the regional will be important factors in Arlington's bid to play in the nationals this summer. They must get through this tourney to earn the right to play in New Hampshire Aug. 31.

If Arlington wins today's game against the Wisconsin team, it wil play at 12:30 p.m. Thursday against Ohio, which has an opening-round bye. If Arlington loses, it plays at 4:30 p.m.

Other games today are Michigan against Indiana at 12:30 p.m. and Kentucky against Bellwood at 8 p.m.

Directions to league tournament game

To get to the Bellwood field, take I-90 to the north exit of Mannheim Road. Then take a right on Washington Boulevard. The field is about 1 mile down Washington on the left side of the street.

10 to battle for $10,000 Needles Purse feature

Arlington's feature offering Wednesday has been carded as the ninth race, a one mile battle on the dirt for 3-year-olds and up under allowance conditions. The $10,000 Needles Purse has attracted 10, including the entry of Cabildo's Marina and Minnie Buss.

Cabildo's Marina will be seeking his third straight victory in allowance company. Like his stablemate, Minnie Buss is a stretch-runner whose late charges have been good for a win, three seconds and two thirds in 13 tries this year. Cabildo's Marina has been facing better.

Country Boy Jim might get that extra push today to produce his initial 1977 win in nine tries. The 5-year-old son of Admiral's Voyage recorded four triumphs in 1976 for earnings of nearly $50,000.

Rueful and Tap the Line are among the cast. The former put together back-to-back wins here, one of which tied a track record on the grass, before running into handicap and allowance horses that proved a bit much to handle.

TAP THE LINE is winless here in seven starts, but the 4-year-old Sensitivo colt has yet to be embarrassed and fits here. Two victories elsewhere this past spring combined with his efforts here have been good for 1977 earnings of $27,225.

African dog show goes on despite uninvited company

Dave Terrill

Just dogs

American dog fanciers who find fault with dog show conditions might be less critical after learning about the recent African experiences endured by a British judge.

The judge reported in the British publication "Dog World" that he arrived at the East African Kennel Club dog show in Nairobi and was told not to enter the ring because an army of ants had invaded the area. Two club members, wise to the ways of African ants, diverted the army from the ring and the judging proceeded.

While in the ring, the judge noticed a large bird perched in a tree above the ring and eating a very large snake. "This did not interfere for a moment with the show, which was very well organized," said the judge in a classic understatement.

IT CAN HAPPEN — most dog fanciers are aware of the dangers of heartworm, but few probably realize that the heart isn't the only part of the dog's body that can be damaged by the disease, reports the Gaines Dog Research Center.

A recent case report in the magazine "Veterinary Medicine/Small Animal Clinician" relates the finding of an immature female worm in the eye of a German Shepherd dog. The dog was operated upon and the worm was removed from the cornea. The operation was a success and the dog recovered.

Although unusual, such difficulties aren't worth chancing. Consult with your veterinarian about the dangers of heartworm and follow his advice on prevention of the disease.

PROBLEM SOLVING: A recent perplexing problem in the world of Greyhound racing has been solved, at least for the moment.

A poll of track patrons and employes taken by a western circuit organization has determined that female dogs will continue to be designated as "bitches" in track literature instead of "Ms" as suggested in recent letters to track managers.

The subject naturally caused some heated controversy and drew some interesting comments from the voters. Let's hope that the dog show folks don't get involved in such a problem.

LICENSING PRO HANDLERS: At the September meeting of the delegates to the American Kennel Club, the discontinuing of licensing professional handlers by the AKC will be voted upon.

There has been a lot of discussion and letter writing by the AKC and the Professional Handlers Assn. on the subject and the final results of the voting will be interesting to see.

BARKS AND BAYS: The Greyhound is considered the fastest of all breeds. Would you like to guess just how fast they have been timed?

Santa Fe cycle season ends tonight

Santa Fe Speedway will present its final regular motorcycle program tonight when it hosts the annual Carrol Resweber Motorcycle Classic on the half-mile clay oval. A TT motorcycle steeplechase card Aug. 31 concludes the 1977 American Motorcycle Assn.-sanctioned season at Santa Fe.

The Carrol Resweber Classic, featuring a 12-lap main event on the track, is the final showdown for riders vying for the 1977 Santa Fe Motorcycle Championship. Starting time is 8 p.m.

It's the Canon NP-50. For low-to-medium copying requirements. It's engineered with rugged solid state technology. It's compact, produces clear, legible copies in statement, letter and legal size, on plain paper that can be written on immediately. And copy onto transparencies, labeled stock and colored paper.

It will replace copiers like the Xerox 660 and old fashioned electrofax copiers that use coated paper to produce copies that are tough to write on and read.

The Canon NP-50 is so reliable it greatly reduces your operating costs. And our suggested retail price of $2975 includes a handsome rollaway stand. Another savings.

Defeats don't get South Siders down

Like water off the Sox backs

by RICK CHRISTOPHER

No one likes to lose but some teams do it better than others. For one, the White Sox. Another, the Yankees. Notice any similarity between the two? They're both winners.

The biggest difference in the White Sox this year, with the notable exception of their fearsome hitting, is that they can accept a loss. In previous years, they could not.

A more relaxed, loose and somewhat younger team than in the past, the Sox have begun to show the maturity of a veteran team as they head into the stretch run of the A.L. West.

NEWLY ACQUIRED Steve Renko, resting as comfortable as possible on a card table chair, propped his feet up on his locker and opened a fan club gift he received before the Yankee game Monday night. A sport shirt.

Renko knows the difference between a winner and a loser. He is familiar with the latter, having played seven long years on a losing Montreal Expo team.

This year, Renko has played on nothing but winners. First, with the fast-starting Chicago Cubs and now with the Sox.

"So what if we lose?" Renko said. "We're supposed to be professionals. And if we do drop a game here or there, it should just make us play harder the next day.

"And that's something you can't do in other sports . . . football, boxing . . . you have to wait at least a week or maybe longer to come back. In baseball, you can come back tomorrow."

Borrowing the words of ex-teammate Willie Davis, Renko best described the White Sox atmosphere, on and off the field, this season:

"FIRST YOU HAVE to know how to lose before you can win."

And the Sox have learned to do just that.

After coming home with a split in a four game set with the Milwaukee Brewers, which some people thought was less than satisfactory, the Sox players milled around the clubhouse before the Yankee game as if they were riding a long-standing winning streak.

About 10 minutes before game time, Sox slugger Richie Zisk walked to the south end of the locker room, where the refrigerator is located, for a pregame snack.

There Zisk joked with Jim Spencer, who was already pouring the milk, and Bart Johnson, who was balancing himself on a couple of stacked equipment trunks.

"See this," Zisk shouted, pointing to a freshly baked chocolate chip cookie. "I think I'll leave it right here. It usually ends up there anyway."

WITH THAT, Zisk placed the half-eaten cookie between his sliding pads and the dark blue Sox bloomers, next to his thigh.

It's hard to tell whether the cookie had given any extra strength to Zisk Monday night, who had two hits, including a triple.

"I don't even like chocolate chip cookies. Besides, I didn't finish all of it," Zisk remarked after the game. If only he had.

From there, Zisk wandered over to Oscar Gamble, who was sandwiched among other Sox mirror-admirers, picking his afro-style hair. Zisk continued the seemingly nonstop movement of his mouth.

"YOU CAN'T HIT lefties and Lamar's (Johnson) not supposed to hit righties," Zisk said. With that, the two chuckled and headed for the food table, which was covered with roast beef, macaroni salad, potato chips, olives, watermelon and beer. Both Gamble and Johnson had key hits in the win.

Eric Soderholm was somewhat less talkative than the rest. He slowly began undressing as the New York writers gathered around his locker mate, Zisk.

Soderholm, in the grips of an 0-15 slump, was not completely upset about his present predicament.

"The key is not to let yourself get down," Soderholm said. "Slumps are inevitable. You try not to fall with it and eventually you'll break out of it. I'll tell you, I'm ready to break out of it soon.

"Even if I don't contribute at the plate, I'll do it someplace else, like on defense," Soderholm said.

"I'M THE KIND of person who had to win on a daily basis, whether at the plate or in the field. Boy, it's nice to get them both together, though.

"If you let any kind of slump get to you, that's when you're beaten," Soderholm continued.

One New York reporter wrote that Comiskey Park has the makings of a "carnival-like atmosphere," created by the ring leader himself, Bill Veeck.

That is exactly the flavor, as nearly 45,500 people jammed their way into the big top to watch the Yankees-Sox game Monday night.

THE FANS, with their constant cheering and ear-shattering sing-a-longs that bother the opponent's rhythm, don't go unnoticed by the players. Especially the standing ovations, which have almost become world famous.

"The people around here are unbelievable," newly acquired Don Kessinger said.

"That standing ovation for me in the eighth inning was super. I wasn't ready for it. How can you not help but do good when you have a backing like that I really wanted to get a hit for them," Kessinger said, smiling from cheek to cheek.

If not for a diving catch by Roy White, he would have had just that plus an additional two Sox runs.

"Not even when I was with the Cubs on a 6-for-6 day did I hear as much fan support as I did tonight," Kessinger said.

"These fans just make you play harder."

And when you play as hard and long as the Sox do, as late ninth-inning rallies attest, it does not give you much time to get down on yourself.

Even when you do lose.

Orta signs 3-year contract with Sox

Second baseman Jorge Orta, who would have become a free agent at the end of the season, Tuesday signed a three year, no cut contract with a sizeable salary increase with the White Sox.

The signing left the White Sox with two players who could become free agents, outfielders Richie Zisk and Oscar Gamble. Zisk is unsigned while Gamble's contract covers the 1977 season.

"They can trade me," Orta said of his contract, "but if I am cut and not traded, they have to pay me."

Orta said he was pleased with the contract because "this is the only place I have played and I want to stay here until the end of my career."

His agent, Rickie Bry, said negoitiations began at spring training and there was a "considerable difference" between their demands and the initial White Sox offer.

"On behalf of the Sox," Bry said, "There's never been a time the lines of communication weren't open."

Orta, from Mazatlan, Mexico, has been with the Sox for five seasons and has a career batting average of .286.

Fight mars World Games cage win

SOFIA, Bulgaria — The United States basketball team fought its way to a 94-78 win over fast, sharpshooting Cuba in the World Student Games Tuesday.

Part of the fight was with fists, chairs and bottles — in a free-swinging brawl that emptied both benches and sent U.S. stars Phil Hubbard and Jim Bailey out with injuries. Bailey, a 6-9 center from Rutgers, was cut almost to the bone of his left elbow by a flying bottle and may require as many as 15 stitches.

Former Hersey cage standout Dave Corzine. now at DePaul, is a member of the U.S. squad.

The battle, a repeat of a Cuba-American rumble at the 1973 Student Games in Moscow, started two minutes into the second half with the score tied at 46-46 and tempers running high.

U.S. coach Denny Crum of Louisville came onto the court to protest a referee's call, and Cuban forward Tomas Herrera gave him a shove. Both benches were empty in seconds.

Keyed-up, pro-Cuban Bulgarian fans joined in with a vengeance, throwing bottles, chairs and even a silver Games medal into the fray.

The victory was the Americans' second in the semifinal round, following a 129-95 rout over the Soviet Union Monday, and guaranteed them a berth in the final four-team group, where they could meet Cuba again.

America's track team boosted their medal tally from eight to 12 with victories in the 400-meter hurdles and 4x400-meter relay plus third place showings in the 4x100-meter relay and women's long-jump.

Two teams advance in LL Series

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — Hard-throwing right-hander John Osborne pitched a three-hitter and belted a solo homer Tuesday to lead El Cajon, Calif. to a 3-1 win over Hattiesburg, Miss. in the opening round of the 31st Little League World Series.

Earlier Tuesday, four consecutive doubles produced three runs in a fourth-inning rally that gave Maracaibo, Venezuela an 8-6 victory over the Torrejon Air Base squad of Madrid, Spain.

Osborne, who struck out 15, drilled his homer in the first and also hit a double in the sixth.

El Cajon scored its two other runs in the second on a wild pitch, balk, error and a two-base hit by Devin Lunsford.

Stockton, Tanner post net wins

BROOKLINE, Mass.

Fifth-seeded Dick Stockton and sixth-seeded Roscoe Tanner rolled to easy straight set victories Tuesday to advance to the second round of the 50th U.S. Pro Tennis Championships at Longwood Cricket Club.

Stockton combined excellent baseline play with a virtually errorless net game, taking 65 minutes to eliminate South Africa's Pat Cramer, 6-3, 6-3.

Tanner parlayed a booming serve with agressive play around the net to banish Doug Crawford, 6-4, 6-4, in 75 minutes.

Fourteenth-seeded Phil Dent of Australia breezed to a 6-3, 6-2 romp over Steve Krulevitz while 15th-seeded Bob Lutz had a bit more trouble before beating Spain's Jose Higueres, 1-6,6-2,6-3.

In first-round doubles play, the second-seeded team of Stan Smith and Bob Lutz defeated Hank Pfister and Jim Delaney, 6-2, 5-7, 6-4. The fifth-seeded Australian team of Phil Dent and John Alexander ousted Mark Cox and Bernie Mitton, 4-6, 7-6, 7-6.

Streaking Royals roll along, 5-2

From Herald Wire Services..

Just about everyone in the country gained ground on Chicago's baseball teams Tuesday.

While the White Sox and Cubs were losing home contests, Kansas City remained the hottest club in the American League by trimming Baltimore. The loop-leading Royals joined with Minnesota in picking up a full game on the Sox in the torrid West Division race.

In the National circuit, the Cubs were the only Eastern Division outfit to sustain a setback Tuesday.

HOME RUNS by George Brett and John Mayberry carried the Royals to their seventh straight victory, a 5-2 decision over the Orioles.

Kansas City, which has now won 18 of the last 20 games at home, scored four runs in the fourth inning with the help of an error by Ken Singleton.

Dave Goltz allowed only one hit — a single by Jim Rice in the fourth inning — for his 16th triumph and hurled the Minnesota Twins to a 7-0 victory over Boston which knocked the Red Sox out of first place in the American League East.

Goltz walked three and struck out 10 in recording his 14th complete game.

Rod Carew had a homer and Lyman Bostock and Glenn Adams had three hits apiece to lead the Twins' 14-hit attack.

A two-run homer by Sal Bando and a solo shot by Cecil Cooper backed the combined seven-hit pitching of Mike Caldwell and Bill Castro and helped the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

IN THE National League the Cubs fell into a tie for third place when the Lou Brock-led St. Louis Cardinals nipped Los Angeles Tuesday night.

Brock rapped out his 2,800 career hit and then stole second base, leaving him four shy of Ty Cobb's all-time major league career record of 892 thefts.

Mike Schmidt drilled a fifth-inning homer and Randy Lerch and Tug McGraw combined on a five-hitter enabling the Philadelphia Phillies to offset a 13-strikeout performance by Atlanta's Phil Niekro and defeat the Braves, 3-2, for their sixth straight triumph.

Al Oliver hit reliever Rollie Fingers' first pitch in the ninth inning for his 15th homer to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 7-6 victory over the San Diego Padres.

BOB FORSCH pitched a three-hitter for his 16th victory and Lou Brock singled home the go-ahead run with two out in the second inning to lead the Cardinals to a 2-1 win over the Dodgers.

A single through a drawn-in infield by Len Randle with one out in the ninth drove home Leo Foster with the winning run as the New York Mets defeated the Houston Astros 2-1 after the Mets had tied the game in the eighth on a pinch double by Ed Kranepool.

Gary Carter hit his 22nd homer in the fifth inning and Dave Cash scored a pair of runs to lead the Montreal Expos to a 4-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Success story

Two women achieve their place in field of chemical research

ELEANOR RIVES

"This is my one and only job, the only ad I ever answered, the only job interview I ever had," said Adrienne Jasnich, supervisor of Information Services, Chemical Research and Development at Quaker Oats Research Laboratory, Barrington.

Her office adjoins the company library, a large sound-muffled room, heavy with chemistry tomes, food science volumes, scientific journals, periodicals, abstracts and indices, as well as computer data bases.

It is her responsibility to inform chemical researchers of all new developments in their areas of interest and to provide complete background information for all new projects. She also has back-up administrative duties, reporting to the associate director of administrative and technical services.

In her student days at Augustana College, Rock Island, Adrienne majored in chemistry, minored in mathematics. A summer-session laboratory job at Elgin State Hospital convinced her that lab work was not for her. She answered the Quaker Oats ad partly because it was not lab work, and partly because it was convenient to Algonquin where she lived at the time.

That was 18 years ago. Since then, Adrienne has seen the lab grow from 150 to 500 people. She has married, taken time off to have two children — six months each time — employing a neighbor to care for them. She has advanced from literature chemist to chemical librarian to survey analyst in product evaluation — just "moving along", as she modestly put it.

IN 1970, Chemical Research and Development started its own information center — and it was me!" she said. Today two other women report to her.

"I've grown totally with this job," she said. "When I came out of school, I didn't know that much, I had no experience. Literature chemistry is something they don't teach in school."

Does Mrs. Jasnich consider herself successful? Her answer was a simple, unselfconscious "Yes."

"My measure is satisfaction," she explained. "This job is stimulating and interesting. I work with wonderful people in wonderful facilities. There are financial rewards, too, but I wouldn't work here if I didn't really enjoy the job."

For Adrienne, there was no magic key to success. "I was always at the right place at the right time," she said. "I didn't have to beat any doors. It just happened."

At Arnar-Stone Laboratories in Mount Prospect, a pharmaceutical branch of American Hospital Supply Corp., Helen Kesler is absorbed in a world of flasks and test tubes. Working with spohisticated instruments worth as much as $20,000 each, she is helping to develop at least six different drugs that may come to market within the next few years.

HELPING TO develop drugs is not new to Helen. She played a major role in the development of Intropin, a medication used in the treatment of shock, and has published articles in professional journals on its use.

More recently she and Lee Gardella, her immediate superior at the time, developed Digoxin, a medication to regulate heart arrhythmias. In recognition of this work, the company presented her with a cash award.

When Helen was a youngster in Poland, she loved the drugstore — the smell of it, the look of it, its bottles and pills and liquids. She had her own little corner at home where she mixed colored solutions.

This is the first in a continuing series on women in the Northwest suburbs who consider themselves successful in the careers they have undertaken.

RESEARCHING NEW drugs to qualify them for marketing is a pleasure to Helen Kesler, chemist at Arnar-Stone Laboratories, Mount Prospect. A certified pharmacist in two other countries, Helen left science to raise her family, returned to it in 1962.

"As a grade school child, I already knew that I wanted to be a pharmacist," she said.

But before she was high school age, her father, a lawyer, was snatched away and in 1940, she and her mother were deported to Southern Siberia. After two years, they were allowed to leave and spent the next five years in countries of the Middle East. She never saw her father again.

Helen met Joseph Kesler, now village planner for Arlington Heights, when they were both college students in Beirut, Lebanon. She has a French degree in pharmacy, Joe in architecture. They married in 1947, moved in 1950 to London where their first child was born. Helen went back to school to become a certified pharmacist under the British system.

IN 1952 THEY came to Chicago, where their second child was born. Helen withdrew from professional life and devoted the next nine years to her family. Then one day, 15 years ago, after the Keslers had moved to Elk Grove Village, she drummed up enough courage to answer an ad for a "laboratory dishwasher." She was hired.

Arnar-Stone didn't know what a deal they were getting. This was no ordinary lab technician. "I started giving advice to the other chemists," she said. "Right away they made me a chemist." Later she was promoted to research chemist. Today in the research area she is outranked by no other woman at the lab.

Now living in Barrington, Helen and Joe Kesler have been married almost 30 years. They are proud of one another and proud of their two children, their daughter a medical assistant, their son only a year away from his M.D.

Helen considers herself successful. "I think I did my best under the circumstances," she says, the "circumstances" being change of countries, change of languages and a nine-year absence from the professional world.

THERE IS still room for further advancement for her, for example in the area of drug stability testing. With her language proficiency — she speaks French, Polish and English, and understands some Russian — it is possible that she might become involved with Arnar-Stone International.

"I'd like to go on working as long as I'm physically able," she said. "I never liked staying at home."

From the financial aspect, Helen says, "Money is nice, but it is not the most important. Our greatest measure of success was in raising our children right."

THE QUAKER OATS Library is her special territory, literature chemistry her special interest. But at day's end Adrienne Jasnich forgets chemical research and development in anticipation of a dip in the pool at her home with her husband and children.

Where women rank in working world

Of every 100 workers in the labor force today, 41 are women, reports the U.S. Departments of Commerce and Labor. The number of working women 16 years and older has swelled to an unprecedented 39,719,000.

Further, women are moving — slowly — into areas that were once the province of males only, into professional, technical and managerial jobs, into medicine, pharmacy, law.

Women hold 41 per cent of all professional jobs in the United States, according to U.S. News and World Report (June 6, 1977). In the field of banking, they make up 25 per cent of the managerial group.

But the report hastens to point out that the great majority of American women are still in jobs traditionally held by females: clerks, elementary school teachers and service workers.

"IF YOU LOOKED, you'd be hard pressed to find any significant number of women in top management positions," stated Gerald Menzel of Menzel, Robinson, Baldwin & Hill, Inc., a Mount Prospect executive search organization.

"There's still prejudice there. Women are moving in that direction, but through 'in-house' training and promotion. That's a slow process, and they must prove themselves every step of the way."

In lower management, on the other hand, he pointed out, if a man and woman are vying for the same job, the woman is more apt to get it. "It's a type of reverse discrimination," he said.

Where women have a decided advantage these days, according to Menzel, is in technical fields at the beginner's level. A woman leaving college with a degree in such fields as business administration, accounting, engineering, chemistry, computer sciences, commands more money than a man with equal qualifications.

"WITH A BACHELOR'S degree in business administration, for example, a man may be offered a starting salary of $13,500, a woman $14,500."

Menzel advises college girls in technical fields to continue for a master's degree at a prestigious school, or to continue while working part time. "That's the key to an upper management job," he said. "Any gal who does that today will move up quickly. A highly educated woman, articulate, politically skillful, strong, assertive, can be as successful as she will allow herself to be," he said.

His definition of success: Commanding a good salary, measuring up to one's goals and aspirations, having a degree of independence and freedom and using all one's abilities to their highest potential.

Mom best judge of right life for her

Julie Martoccio

Women and children first

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

My mother has been a widow for 10 years. She lives on Social Security and has her home in Wisconsin. About five years ago, she met a bachelor her age and has been dating him ever since.

Now she tells me that she is asking him to move in with her as a boarder to help defray expenses. Her argument is that he eats at her house every night anyway and that the money he spends for renting an apartment can be turned over to her to maintain the house.

THIS MAN IS foreign-born and says that with a small pension and his Social Security, he can return to his homeland and live very comfortably. I believe this is what made my mother decide to ask him to board with her and why he said what he did in the first place.

I don't like the setup and asked my mother to come here and live with me. (I'm divorced and have no children.) She is very independent and stubborn. When I ask her what will the neighbors think, she laughs and says, "Sin is in." How can I talk her out of this situation? — Mae.

Dear Mae,

You can't. Your mother's remark about sin is her way of telling you to "butt out" and not necessarily what you think her retort implies.

Stop and think about the situation from her standpoint, not yours. Do you honestly think that you, a career woman, can offer your mother a better life in a big city away from her friends and the only town she's ever lived in?

WHATEVER HER relationship is with her friend, it certainly isn't going to change simply because he'll be living in her house. If asking him to board with her is her way of keeping him in this country, paying for his meals and encouraging his companionship while adding to her income, you'll have to admit that "taking advantage of her" is not the right viewpoint.

Be happy that your mother can fend for herself and remember that her independence is your freedom, too.

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

I hope you don't mind repeating something I've forgotten that I heard you say at our club meeting because I feel it was very important. You said that a person has six basic needs and I can only remember four. But I can remember thinking at the time that if a person could check list her life every now and then when she's unhappy, she could take steps to fill the void and make herself much happier.

MINE WAS "creative expression" which surprisingly led to "self-esteem" ever since I joined an art class. I can't tell you what it has done for my life. Even my children and husband are happier because I am. — Grateful S.Y.

Dear S.Y.

The six basic needs I mentioned are: love, security, creative expression, recognition, new experiences, self-esteem. You're right! Check listing is a great idea!

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

Genes determine size of our body

During my four years in high school I participated in varsity sports and cheerleading year round. From all this activity I developed big muscles in my calves and thighs. Is there any possible way that I can get rid of these mucles or thin out my legs?

A muscle stays as large as it needs to be to have the strength to do the work it is required to do regularly. That means if a muscle is not required to do strength work, it will begin to get smaller. We usually say that to maintain your muscle size and strength you must do strength exercises at least once a week.

Apparently if you are not doing sports now, the only weight your calves and legs must lift is your own body. Under these circumstances, if you are not obese and have fat over your thighs, the size of your muscles may be a familial characteristic.

Those genes we inherit do have their effects. That is why we have beef cattle and dairy cows — one for muscle, the other for milk. Draft horses for work are heavy muscular animals while race horses have different bodies.

Don't try too hard to change your natural state. Just get rid of fat if you already have some. To give you a better idea of what controls muscle size I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-4, Weight Training for Energy and Weight Control. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped self-addressed envelope for it. Keep in mind those muscles, if they are muscles and not fat, may help keep you from getting fat later in life.

My son is 18 months old. The children's specialist I take him to thinks he has a heart murmur which could be innocent. My family doctor disagrees with him. What is a heart murmur? How can you check it?

My father and father-in-law both died young because of heart failure — my father at 48 and my father-in-law at 50. I am 37 and my wife is 29. My blood pressure is not too high and my wife is in good health. Your opinion on this will be appreciated

Just as a murmuring brook is a rapid stream that makes a noise, a murmur in the heart is a sound made from the turbulence of blood circulating.

Murmurs in the heart and blood vessels then represent the vibrations of circulation. In young children with rapid heart beats and thin chests these sounds are easily heard and may have no medical signifiance at all. In other instances the vibrations are caused by defects inside the heart or arteries. Such defects can be caused from damage to the heart valves or arteries or from birth defects in the chambers of the heart.

Clearly, your pediatrician thinks the murmur he hears is not important. It is probably not a very loud murmur or there would be no disagreement about its presence. Incidentally, an innocent murmur may be present on one examination and not on another depending on how rapid the circulation is — which may also be related to whether the patient is resting or anxious.

Dr. Lamb answers representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Fresh fruit salad is cheap and expandable

Dear Roberta: For a bridal shower I'm going to give I need a salad recipe that can serve many guests. Do you have one that's "different," but that won't cost me an arm and a leg? — JoAnne Locke.

Lots cheaper than seafood or poultry salads, this fresh fruit salad is also expandable. You can add fruit to the sauce, or more whipped cream at the end, to serve up to 16 or 18. It's so rich, besides, that servings shouldn't be large. Buy whatever fresh fruit catches your fancy at the grocery. Peel and cut into a bowl large, well-drained pieces of the fruit. Mix in a tablespoon of lemon juice to stop the fruit from darkening. Chill. Mix in a saucepan two egg yolks, one-quarter cup sugar, and one teaspoon cornstarch. Cook over hot water or over very low direct heat, and slowly add one quarter cup pineapple juice and the juice of one lemon. Stir constnatly until thick. Chill. Not too far ahead of serving, coat the fruit with the sauce. Whip one cup heavy cream, and gently fold into the fruit. Quickly serve over salad greens in dessert or soup bowls.

Dear Roberta: When you're about to paint something made mostly of wood, smear metal parts, like door hinges or drawer pulls, with petroleum jelly. Then you can paint as closely to the metal as you want, and wipe up drips or accidents with a clean rag. — Maude Stevens.

Find out the code number of your car key from your car purchase papers or from your dealer. Carry the number with you, so that if you lose the key or leave it inside a locked car, an emergency road service can bring the right master key to open it. The American Automobile Assn. warns, by the way, that people often accidentally lock their keys in the car trunk.

Teach your children and your babysitters to take certain precautions when there are no adults at home. First, they must never open the door to someone they don't know well. And second, they must not give anyone at the door or on the phone the information that you are out. The lines we rehearse here are: "My Mom's in the shower. And I'm not allowed to open the door." Or, to a phone caller, "Dad is taking a nap. Can he call you back in a few minutes?"

Literature course new for women

Harper College's Women in Literature classes will begin Monday Sept. 12, from 1 to 3:45 p.m. in Room P106 on the Harper campus in Palatine.

Barbara Lund will teach the opening eight-week session which includes works by Virginia Woolf, Kate Chopin, Doris Lessing, Charlotte Perkins Gilman and noted women poets and short story writers.

Ms. Lund stated the class will serve as a forum for students to express their personal response to literature. The course is designed to show women how literature relates to their lives and can be a spur to personal growth and self-knowledge.

WOMEN IN Literature B, to be taught by Rita Michalak beginning Oct. 26 at 1 p.m., will feature several current books dealing with women's problems.

A guest expert on alcoholism will join students in discussing Joyce Rebeta-Burditt's "The Cracker Factory."

Other works to be studied in depth in Class B and Women in Literature C, starting Oct. 18 at 7:15 p.m. at St. Viator High School, will include Simone de Beauvoir's "The Second Sex," Mary Shelley's "Frankenstein" and works by Doris Lessing, May Sarton and Elisabeth Kubler-Ross.

A REPRESENTATIVE from a rape counseling service will join the discussion of Susan Brownmiller's "Against Our Will."

Tuition for the eight-week session is $22.50, with senior citizens paying $4.50. Students may register for session A, B or C, since each is an independent program and attendance at an earlier session is not a prerequisite.

Women's program coordinator Rena Trevor may be called at 397-3000 ext. 560 for program information.

IMPROVISING A PALM tree, two Hawaiian-garbed mainlanders prepare for a luau this Saturday for Arlington Heights Newcomers and guests. Patricia DiRenzo-Steven Woodburn

Deciding where they would be married was difficult for Patricia Anne DiRenzo and Steven Robert Woodburn. Pat and Steve met when she was teaching school in Lorain, Ohio, and Steve came from Oregon to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Woodburn, in Lorain. Pat's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter DiRenzo, have lived in Palatine these past three years. And Pat has moved to Oregon.

They settled on St. Ann's Catholic Church in Cleveland Heights, Ohio, where Pat's parents had been members for 18 years. The double ring ceremony took place July 30 at 2 p.m.

The bride's gown of white organza over taffeta, trimmed in Venise lace, swept into a full chapel length train. Her Juliet headpiece secured an elbow-length illusion veil with blusher. Her small cascade of flowers held a single white orchid surrounded by stephanotis.

MRS. JERRY Adamic, Bellefontaine, Ohio, was matron of honor. The bride's sisters, Marie and Jane, and Noreen Bowdle of Dayton, Ohio, were bridesmaids. The girls all wore mint green knit halter dresses with floral jackets and carried a flower ball of yellow daisies, pink roses, blue strawflowers and baby's breath.

Steven chose Charles Flick of Vancouver, Wash. as his best man, with his two brothers, William and Terrence, and Jeff Wendel of Newton, Iowa, as groomsmen.

The Berkshire Hills Country Club, Chesterland, Ohio, was the scene of the reception, a sit-down dinner for 250 people. The newlyweds traveled to Canada for a two-week honeymoon. They will reside in Oregon.

Patricia has a master's degree in special education from the University of Oregon and Steven a bachelor's degree in urban studies from the same school.

Weddings

Jean Ostrom-William J. Schrode

William J. Schrode placed his grandmother's wedding ring on Jean Ostrom's finger when the couple exchanged vows and rings at 11:30 a.m. July 30 in the Community Presbyterian Church of Mount Prospect.

Jean is the daughter of the L. F. Ostroms of Mount Prospect and a '71 graduate of Prospect High School. She and her bridegroom, son of the Thomas J. Schrodes of Lansing, Ill., graduated last year from Eastern Illinois University.

The bride had just one attendant, Lynn Thomas of Wheaton as matron of honor, and the groom's brother, Thomas Slhrode Jr., was best man. Brothers of the pair, Paul Ostrom and James Schrode, ushered.

JEAN CHOSE a white knit jersey bridal gown and picture hat, both trimmed in lace, and carried white roses, daisies and ivy.

Her attendant wore mint green and carried daisies, stephanotis and ivy.

The newlyweds are living in Lombard since returning from a week's honeymoon at Mackinac Island, Mich. The bride works for the Keebler Co., Elmhurst, and the groom for Universal Coach Parts, Northlake.

Women politicians were tomboys

A survey of a sports magazine indicates most women politicians who are winners in their careers were tomboys in their youth.

The nation's two women governors, one of two women Cabinet members, three of four women mayors of major cities and eight of the country's 18 congresswomen rated that nickname, according to the survey by "Women Sports" magazine. An article in the current (August) issue said they climbed trees, played baseball and participated in other traditionally boyish activities.

The women included Gov. Ella Grasso of Connecticut, Gov. Dixy Lee Ray of Washington, Mayors Margaret Hance of Phoenix, Janet Gray Hayes of San Jose, Calif., and Patience Latting of Oklahoma City, and U.S. Congresswomen Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., Mary Rose Oaker, D-Ohio, Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., and Democrats Barbara Mikulski and Gladys Spellman of Maryland.

The survey also showed two former congresswomen, Bella Abzug of New York and Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, were basketball players.

Electricity outlook dim for the 1980s

There could be electricity shortages in the U.S. by the mid-1980s, predicts William G. Kuhns, chairman of General Public utilities Corp.

"If maintenance of an adequate electric power supply is prevented by regulatory lag and financing problems leading to construction delays, the shortages that could develop in the 1980s could be frightful," he said.

He pointed out that there are "no quick fixes," other than installation of combustion turbine generators that burn oil, a dwindling resource, and produce electricity at high cost. This would be a major policy mistake, he said.

He added that the growing shortages of natural gas and oil are inducing an accelerating shift from these energy sources to electricty, "thus compounding the future electric supply problem."

One Stop Satisfaction

by Ed Landwehr

Even the best of television sets will produce interference like snow and ghosts from time to time, depending on outside conditions. It could be weather conditions, bad house wiring or an inefficient electrical appliance in the neighborhood. But, if the trouble persists without these outside conditions, then you need a television service technician.

Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, specializes in all types of electronic equipment and experience that assures you satisfaction all the time. You'll find the cost of our services no more, often less, than the regular TV tube changing shopman. Phone 255-0700 next time and let us prove it. You'll like our one-stop service.

Diane Mermigas

New show, same image for Betty White

Viewers just loved it when man-crazy Sue Ann Nivens teased and flirted with anyone wearing a necktie wrapped around his neck.

Her sarcastic, cunning remarks delivered quick and sharp often provided comedic high spots to the "Mary Tyler Moore" show. And, so it was the coquettish matron became as popular a character as sweet, conscientious Mary Richards.

Although the comedy series has ended after seven years and most of its characters have dispersed, the "bitchy side of Sue Ann Nivens" lives on in Betty White's newest character, Joyce Whitman, she said.

MS. WHITE, a native of Oak Park, Ill., and wife of game show host Allen Ludden, has landed the starring role in her own television series this fall under the careful, tasteful hand of Grant Tinker and his MTM Productions.

Her new character bares similarities not only to the Sue Ann Nivens she portrayed so masterfully, but to the actress herself, she said.

The new half hour series is called "The Betty White Show" and Joyce Whitman is a middle-aged, would-be actress who finally reaches the apex of her career with a starring role in her own television series, "Undercover Woman," an off-beat version of Angie Dickinson's "Police Woman" series.

THE DIRECTOR of the show is John Elliot, Joyce's ex-husband who takes joy in exercising his power over her once again without the matrimonial ties. John Hillerman, a veteran actor perfectly cast for the role, knows how to bring out the best, er ah, worst out of Betty White.

The love-hate relationship the two carry on, both on and off of the set, provides a solid comedy base for the show that isn't bound to waver as the season progresses and as long as MTM can keep the insulting humor and sexual swipes just this side of tasteful.

There's a male stuntman and stand-in for the actress who goes around in drag, always dressed up in the same costume as Joyce on the set and always ready for action. It makes for some funny moments in the making of the fictitious show.

And, as if MTM wanted to recapture a litle bit of that Mary Tyler Moore magic, its has incorporated Georgia Engel into the story line as Mitzi Maloney, Joyce's roommate and onetime unemployment office employe who is now, herself, out of work.

MS. ENGEL continues to do what she does best in "The Betty White Show" and that is to portray the off-the-wall but good natured friend who's never at a loss for something dumb to say.

Executive producer Bob Ellison said Mitzi will undoubtedly carry on a romance with Alex Henteloff, the network's blue-pencil man played by Doug Porterfield, who worked his way up from the mailroom to the position of network watchdog and advisor to the "Undercover Woman" series.

Alex provides a vehicle by which writers of Ms. White's show can poke a little fun at themselves and those who produce television, adding to the show's candid treatment of such sacred cows as marriage, divorce and television in the making.

"I loved Sue Ann as rotten as she was, and I hated to put the old gal away and send her off to that big army bivouac in the sky, but that's show biz," Ms. White said in a recent interview.

"THE WRITERS FELT that there just wasn't enough mileage left in Sue Ann and that maybe we should start all over again. Actually, it was the way that Mary and Lou, characters on Mary's show, reacted to Sue Ann that made what she said funny," Ms. White said.

"But, that waspish, tongue-in-cheek humor that was so much a part of that character is still there in my new one."

Ms. White says Joyce Whitman isn't man-crazy like Sue Anne Nivens was, "she just likes to throw herself at her ex-husband, John, and he just throws her back."

BETTY WHITE

In one scene of the premiere episode of "The Betty White Show," the first day that husband and wife are reunited on the set of the television show, Joyce quips, "I've always had the greatest respect for you as a director. It's only as a person I despise you."

John retaliates with the crack, "Your father wears pantyhose."

WHILE THE CAST of the new show is holding it's breath to see whether the network (which goes unnamed in the series) will adopt "Undercover Woman" as a regular program, a courier bearing good news rushes in the room and yells, "They said it was lurid, tasteless and appealed to the mentality of an eight-year-old. They loved it!"

And so it goes in the world of television comedy.

But, "The Betty White Show," which will air Mondays on CBS, looks to be one of the better comedy contributions this fall that finally gives Betty White the well-deserved, spotlight chance to use her talents to all extremes.

Sue Ann Nivens was supposed to have been a fly-by-night character that Betty White craftily nurtured into a popular regular on the "Mary Tyler Moore" show. She's grateful for that chance because it helped dispel the "sweet-n-light image" the public had about her from seeing her on untold number of American household product commercials and hosting more than 20 Rose Bowl parades.

"Actually, I always thought that Sue Ann was more the Betty White type," she said.

TV NOTES:

Robert Mulholland, the 43-year-old graduate of Northwestern University's Medill Journalism School who began his television career in 1961 at WMAQ-TV Channel 5 in Chicago, has been named president of the NBC television network. He succeeds Robert Howard who has an uncertain future with the network which is third in the ratings behind ABC and CBS. Mulholland, who most recently was developing coverage of the 1980 Moscow Olympics, once produced the nightly Channel 5 newscast anchored by Floyd Kalber and was the Chicago-based producer of the "Huntley-Brinkley" report.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

- The conclusion of the powerful drama, "Attack on Terror," about a clash between the Ku Klux Klan and the FBI, airs at 8 p.m. on Channel 2.
- Sir Georg Solti conducts the Chicago Symphony in two works by Felix Mendelssohn on "Great Performances" at 8 p.m. on Channel 11.
